Highway tragedy

Evans wants dump closed

Stivers argues business rights

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John Evans, blaming federal officials for monitoring problems at an Owyhee County toxic-waste dump, demanded Thursday the site be shut down because it may pose a serious environmental threat.

Evans said he sent a letter Thursday to Environmental Protection Agency Director William Ruckelshaus asking that the dump — operated near Grand View by EnviroSafe Services of Idaho, Inc. — be closed "because they have abused their privileges."

"Let's shut it down now and get some technical, geologists and engineers to study the site to see if it is safe," the Democratic chief executive told a news conference. "We want to be sure the farmers and families of Idaho are protected."

But Idaho EPA Director Lynn McKee said the facility probably would not be shut down because it does not present an immediate public health hazard.

"We have not found the facts that indicate we should take that action," McKee said. "We have found violations of federal law, but we have found no imminent public health threat."

He said the EPA would have to seek a court order to close the site. "It takes due process of law. We can't just take an arbitrary action," he said.

Rick Morton, manager of the ESI site, said his firm would contact federal and state officials to gain more information on the governor's concerns.

"I don't think the amount of concern is justified," Morton said. "We are doing everything basically that he (Evans) has recommended."

"We have conducted further geological studies and have found nothing to date that would deem the site unsafe," the manager said.

Meanwhile, Evans' decision to seek closure of a Grand View hazardous waste dump was labeled a "pretty cruel and harsh blow" that violates

Congress cuts nerve gases

By PATRICIA KOZA

WASHINGTON — Senate and House negotiators Thursday approved a $249 billion military spending bill that includes $24 million in cover aid for Nicaraguan rebels but no money for nerve gas production.

"We have a bill," announced Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, head of the Senate conference committee members as the negotiators ended an all-day private session devoted mainly to the Nicaragua question.

The Senate and House are expected to give final approval to the bill Friday before recessing until January.

House negotiators gave in to the Senate on the Nicaraguan aid question and Senate representatives agreed to the House position on nerve gas.

Stevens said the conferees agreed to $24 million for the Nicaragua covert program, which he estimated was the amount that would be needed to carry

It through next June when the administration may make a request for more funds.

The House conferees had to give up an earlier April 1 cutoff date for aid for the CIA-backed Nicaraguan paramilitary forces fighting the leftist Sandinista government.

Earlier in the day, House negotiators prevailed when the committee cut $124 million for producing a new generation of nerve gas weapons from a military spending bill.

The Senate bill had contained $106 million to prepare for production of the Bigray biologic bomb and $18 million for the hardware to build 160mm artillery shells. The House had eliminated the funding.

"This has been a long, tedious and emotional battle, and I'm very pleased that the conferees made a

Twin Falls office cited in state probe

By The Times-News and United Press International

TWIN FALLS — Legislative auditors said Thursday employees at the Twin Falls office of the state Department of Agriculture made more than 2,000 personal phone calls, costing taxpayers about $1,900 over a three-year period ending in June of 1982.

The auditors also charged that one supervisor failed to work the hours, she was paid for and padded travel vouchers.

These allegations were contained in a wide-ranging audit of state Agriculture Department offices around the state that was reviewed at a meeting of the Legislature's Finance-Appropriations Committee.

As a result of the investigation, several employees at the Twin Falls office were required to pay restitution or forfeit some annual leave time, state Agriculture Department officials reported.

The jet assault came a day after the auditors spent between 10 to 15 man-hour days probing the Twin Falls Bean and Pea inspection office, which was singled out in the report for some of the strongest criticism.

At one point during the January investigation, the state auditors sent an investigator to Twin Falls to conduct a three-day, undercover surveillance operation.

The auditors' tactics did not sit well with state Agriculture Department Director Max Hanson, who told the legislators that "I am getting sick and tired of state employees acting like a couple of Keystone Cops."

Hanson said the legislative auditors did not work well with agency administrators while they carried out the investigation.

But Bruce Balderson, a legislative auditor, said his office contacted the state Department of Agriculture's Boise office prior to conducting the undercover operation.

Balderson said the undercover operation was prompted by a review of reimbursement vouchers indicating "there seemed to be an awful lot of travel."

Balderson then sent down an undercover agent who reported that one inspector was both overstating travel expenses and actual hours worked on the job.

"An individual reported having worked, when in fact they had not," Balderson said. "They were staying at home, then stopping in at the office for short periods of time, and then going shopping."

In one instance, the auditors reported, the inspector worked only 22 minutes while claiming credit for eight hours.

The results of the audit were turned over to the state attorney general's office, which then forwarded the report to the Twin Falls County prosecutor's office.

French bombers blast Iranian military bases

By HUGH POPE
United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon — French jets swooped deep behind Syrian lines in eastern Lebanon Thursday and smashed Iranian guerrilla bases to retaliate for the bombing of a French barracks in Beirut last month. At least 30 people were reported killed or wounded.

Six hours later, gunmen fired rocket-propelled grenades and automatic weapons at a French peace-keeping post in the Shiite Muslim neighborhood of Khadash el Ghamik in west Beirut, apparently in retaliation for the air strike. No one was reported injured.

The jet assault came a day after Israeli warjets destroyed training camps, arms depots and command centers of the militant Islamic Amal militia in retribution for the Nov. 7 bombing of Israel's headquarters in Tyre.

State-run Beirut radio and the station of the Phalangie militia reported heavy casualties in Baalbek, 42 miles east of Beirut and 10 miles north of Beirut Radio said early Friday that rescue workers were still looking for bodies and quoted Lebanese police as saying "about 30 Lebanese and Iranian armed men were killed and wounded in the attack."

They said 12 Super Etendards destroyed a Baalbek hotel Iranians used as a dormitory, a training base in Ras el Ain three miles to the east and the Sheikh Abdullah barracks that housed Iranian and pro-Iranian fighters of the Islamic Amal.

Sources in Paris said the strike was first planned for Saturday but was postponed due to bad weather. They said the attack was ordered after French commanders uncovered a new terrorist plot to attack their peacekeepers.

But still stalled in Idaho Greyhound buses run, spark violence

Striking Greyhound employee climbs on bus in Seattle

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Scores of striking Greyhound workers, some hurling eggs and bottles and waving American flags, were arrested Thursday in clashes which erupted at bus stations from coast-to-coast as the company resumed service using non-union employees.

Angry confrontations flared at terminals from San Francisco to New York City — most under the glare of television lights — but no serious injuries were reported.

The buses, protected by police and security guards, began taking to the highways at dawn. Most were nearly empty as they drove past angry pickets.

More than 12,000 strikers shut down the country's largest bus system two weeks ago after being asked to take 9.5 percent wage cuts. Greyhound later began hiring non-union replacements, including drivers, and at least 1,700 union members also quit the walkout rather than lose their jobs.

While Greyhound buses were on the road in several parts of the country Thursday, service was not resumed in Idaho as striking union drivers continued their 15-day-old walkout.

Greyhound spokeswoman Beth Meyer at the firm's headquarters in Phoenix, Ariz., said Idaho service would probably not begin for about three months when the company is back at full strength.

Meyer said limited service resumed in heavily populated areas along the east and west coasts.

"In order for Greyhound to meet the greater demand of where the passengers seem to come from, we had to go to those busiest areas first," she said.

John Teets, Greyhound chairman, said he was "elated." Of 346 schedules operating Thursday he said 99.5

Congress lauds Danny Thomas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate approved and sent to the White House Thursday legislation awarding a special gold medal to entertainer Danny Thomas.

The resolution, previously approved by the House, was passed by voice vote without dissent.

Thomas was cited for his "humanitarian efforts" that include the founding of St. Jude Children's research hospital and his annual fund-raising efforts on behalf of children stricken with leukemia.

Starlings overrunning islands

LONDON (UPI) — Thousands of starlings have invaded England's Channel Islands, prompting some residents to protect themselves against the "odd droppings" with umbrellas, a zoo official said Thursday.

The birds, which tend to flock together in migratory patterns in autumn, pose little danger to residents of the islands of Guernsey and Jersey, said a spokesman for the Jersey Zoo.

"They do run the chance of getting the odd droppings on them, though," the spokesman said. Many Jersey residents have popped up umbrellas to defend themselves against the imposing birds.

A spokesman said it was not unusual for thousands of birds to flock together in one area at times.

On Guernsey, the starlings have become so taken with a local lighthouse that the beacon-keeper is kept busy washing the windows so light can pass through the Guernsey Press newspaper reported.

Sandinista Army morale ebbs

By United Press International

The chief of staff of Nicaragua's anti-Marxist rebels claimed Thursday the morale of the Sandinista Army was collapsing so fast a U.S. Grenada-style invasion of the Central American country would not be necessary.

Enrique Echazary, known as Commander Sierra, made the remarks in an interview in Honduras one day before 800 U.S. Marines were to land on a Honduran beach as part of joint war games with Honduras that Nicaragua says is a prelude to invasion.

Echazary, chief of staff of the Democratic Nicaraguan Forces, called FDN, claimed the Nicaraguan rebels' military position is improving steadily inside Nicaragua while the Sandinista position is weakening.

Sierra, who was an officer under dictator Anastasio Somoza in the 1970s after he lost to Sandinista guerrillas, said the FDN had 8,000 fighters inside Nicaragua and plans to increase them to 15,000 in the next few months.

Beer baron's kidnappers phone

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (UPI) — Beer baron Freddie Heineken's kidnappers have telephoned his home twice and provided photographs proving he and his driver were alive Saturday, the De Telegraaf newspaper reported today.

Police and staff at the Heineken brewery have refused to comment on the case since the kidnappers demanded a news blackout demanded a week ago.

Three hooded gunmen seized Heineken, 60, chairman of the world's fourth-largest brewery, and his driver Nov. 9 in downtown Amsterdam.

De Telegraaf, an Amsterdam daily, said the kidnappers telephoned Heineken's beachfront home Saturday with instructions to pick up a letter at the Utrecht central station.

No videotape of Aquino killing

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — A general told an official inquiry Thursday that there was no videotape of opposition leader Benigno Aquino's murder, although there were at least two cameras adjacent to the death scene.

"We only record events of actual emergencies such as hijacking," Brig. Gen. Luther Custodio told the official inquiry into Aquino's assassination Aug. 21 at Manila airport.

Custodio was in charge of a massive airport security operation for Aquino's arrival, including deployment of 1,199 crack troops. He said there were at least two cameras near the scene but that they did not take pictures.

"We cannot record everything," Custodio told Special Prosecutor Andres Narvasa, who noted that there had been reported trouble on the life of Aquino, returning from three years of self-exile in the United States.

Existence of the secret, closed-circuit television system was disclosed to UPI last month by its West German manufacturer.

9-year-old meets with Reagan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "A pretty nervous" 9-year-old Heather Ross of Hamlet, Ohio, met with President Reagan in the Oval Office Thursday, sat at his desk, and heard from the man himself how tough it is to be president.

Afterward, she quoted him as saying, "It's a big job."

And she thought it was all "pretty neat."

Heather, a straight "A" student, had written to the president last year asking him, "How do you run the country?"

Dennis Voorhees, a deputy prosecutor for Twin Falls County, said his office was considering prosecution of two individuals for allegedly padding mileage vouchers and making persons long-distance phone calls on agency lines.

But Voorhees said his office decided not to prosecute the case because state guidelines regulating phone use and mileage allegations have been so vaguely worded it would be difficult to win the case.

The committee is scheduled to meet at 10 a.m. Friday.

Stivers said the governor's demand to close a privately owned company "without due process" is "unthinkable."

Evans said he believes the main responsibility for alleged inadequate monitoring of the site rests with the EPA, not state inspectors.

"The state has had a contract to inspect the site once a year," he said. "The state's recommendations have not been followed by the EPA. The EPA is responsible for hazardous waste monitoring," he said.

After hearing Owyhee County residents charge that former Envirosearch employees had told the EPA of illegal waste dumping practices at the site, the governor retorted "Why the hell didn't the EPA do something about it?"

But in the same meeting with the Owyhee County residents, Evans acknowledged that a state inspector was wrong not to take a soil sample near the dump after a flash flood in August.

McKee defended the EPA's monitoring of the dump and agreed with Evans that the state inspector should have taken a soil sample.

decision which should go a long way toward laying the issue to rest," said Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., the chief nerve gas opponent in the Senate.

"It's good to know the system works," said Rep. Ed Bethune, R-Ark., a key House opponent. "If they (the administration) want to come back again, we'll be there to meet 'em."

Stevens said the final bill appropriates approximately $249 billion for Defense Department functions such as weapons programs, operations and maintenance, and research and development.

The final product did not include $1.8 billion that was contained in the Senate version for a 4 percent pay raise for military and civilian Defense Department personnel.

Rep. Joseph Addabbo, D-N.Y., who heads the House negotiators, said that question was left for the administration's supplemental funding request next June because the pay raise was not authorized by Congress earlier this year.

Elsewhere in the Capitol, a House-Senate conference on an intelligence authorization bill also was unable to resolve the issue and recessed until Friday.

If the decision stands, the nerve gas program will be the only significant weapons casualty in President Reagan's proposed 1984 budget.

In other decisions, the conferees decided to hold back, pending receipt of a report from the administration, $19.4 million Reagan wanted in advance funding for an Air Force anti-satellite weapon program now in the testing stage.

Scored were arrested Thursday for disorderly conduct as demonstrators shouted obscenities and held the buses with eggs, bottles and rocks.

One bus returned to the San Francisco terminal with its windshield wipers torn off, windshield smashed and splattered with paint. In Boston, at least 50 persons were arrested after tossing eggs and golf balls at buses. Some hurled themselves in front of the wheels. In Seattle, police in riot gear had to escort one bus from a terminal.

Twenty men were arrested for violating a court order limiting the number of pickets at Greyhound's Philadelphia bus terminal.

The pickets blocked a bus bound for Washington, D.C., waving an American flag and shouting "scab" at non-union workers who tried to restart bus service from the terminal.

A brick was thrown at another bus, breaking its windshield.

The strikers surrounded the Washington-bound bus, which had a non-union driver aboard, beating and spitting on it. No passengers were aboard.

Officials of Greyhound and the Amalgamated Transit Union meanwhile continued negotiations in Seattle, Ariz., but neither side anticipated an early settlement of the strike that began Nov. 3.

Today's weather

Partly cloudy with winds 10-15 mph

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert, Jerome-Gooding areas: Partly cloudy with west winds of 10 to 20 mph; Friday with increasing clouds and a slight chance of showers in the afternoon on Saturday. Highs in the mid 50s both days and lows of 34 to 36 for Friday night.

Camas Prairie, Halley, Wood River areas: Partly cloudy and windy Friday with highs in the low to mid 40s. Low Friday night will be between 20 and 25. Increasing clouds Saturday with a chance of showers in the afternoon. Highs 40 to 45.

Northern Nevada and Utah: A cold front will move across Utah Friday with a drier northwest flow following today and Saturday. Highs near 45 both days with lows between 25 to 35. No information was available from Nevada for today's forecast.

Synopsis: An active Pacific cold front moved through Idaho Thursday producing rain at lower elevations and snow above 5,000 feet in the north and 6,000 feet in the south.

Color and unstable air pushed in Thursday night lowering the snow level to between 4,000 and 5,000 feet with a travelers advisory for Thursday night and Friday morning in the mountains above 5,000 feet in southeastern Idaho.

Snowfall reports show 8 inches of new snow at Deadwood Reservoir, 4 inches at Halley, 3 inches at Fairfield and 2 inches at McCall.

Most of the state had measurable precipitation since Wednesday. Southwestern and south central Idaho locations generally received from one to four tenths of an inch.

At midwestern Thursday, rain with snow in the mountains was still falling across southern Idaho from Twin Falls eastward. Temperatures ranged from the low 50s in southwestern and northern Idaho to the upper 30s in the central mountains and in the southeast. The state's warmest reading was 59 degrees at Emmett after a morning low of 26 at Elk City and Dalia.

Winds were generally light except in the upper Snake River Valley where southerly winds of up to 25 mph were reported.

The extended forecast for the Magic Valley and southern Idaho calls for rain and periods of snow on Sunday except for rain in lower southwestern valleys. Scattered snow showers Monday. Dry on Tuesday except for widely scattered snow showers in eastern Idaho. Highs 35 to 45 Sunday and mostly in the 30s on Monday and Tuesday. Lows 25 to 35 Monday and in the teens to Low 20s by Tuesday.

Elsewhere in the nation Thursday, the warmest temperature reported was 85 degrees at Brownsville and McAllen, Texas, and the coldest was 6 at Alamosa, Colo.

Negotiators say hike debt ceiling by $101 billion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Capitol Hill negotiators agreed Thursday night to increase the national debt limit by $101 billion — enough to let the government pay its bills through April.

During a brief conference committee session, they decided to increase the debt limit to $1.49 trillion, splitting the difference between the lower figure that the Senate approved the day before and the higher limit the House adopted earlier this year.

The compromise, which the Senate was expected to consider later Thursday, moved the cash-short federal government a step closer to solvency and cleared the way for Congress to adjourn for the year by Friday as scheduled.

The government, which cannot borrow any more under law, would face a major cash crisis in a few weeks if the debt limit is not raised.

During the amicable meeting, the lawmakers also agreed to strip off the numerous unrelated amendments that the Senate added, including one that would invoke the War Powers Resolution concerning the U.S. troops in Grenada.

The Senate, which agreed 58-40 Wednesday night on a smaller debt limit increase — to $1.45 trillion — was expected to consider the compromise Thursday night. The House did not plan to act until Friday.

Both chambers must approve the measure and send it to President Reagan before Congress can adjourn for the year, tentatively set for Friday.

Earlier this year, the House agreed to boost the debt limit to just over $1.4 trillion, as President Reagan requested. That figure is expected to cover the government's borrowing needs through September 1984, the end of the fiscal year.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the administration would push Capitol Hill negotiators to support the full $1.615 trillion figure, but leaders in both chambers indicated Congress would agree to split the difference and approve a debt ceiling that would last through April.

The current $1.383 trillion debt ceiling technically expired Oct. 31. House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, D-Mass., said he expected no trouble in final passage of the bill.

He thought it was pretty well agreed, O'Neill said after consulting with House Ways and Means chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill.

Once a compromise is worked out, it must be approved by both the House and Senate and sent to Reagan for his signature, before Congress can call it quits for the year, tentatively set for Friday.

House refuses to consider new tax-increase bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House refused Thursday to consider an $8 billion tax increase bill, killing any chance that Congress this year will reduce swollen federal budget deficits that threaten the economic recovery.

"We have confessed to an already doubting nation that we are ruled by political fear rather than economic courage," House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., said.

The Democratic-dominated House, in a key test vote, defeated 214-204 a rule that would have governed the debate of the proposed $8 billion tax increase proposal. The vote effectively killed the proposal for this session.

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, D-Mass., said, "The next time I see Republican crocodile tears about the deficit, I will ask them where their party was today."

"Today's vote proves once again that we cannot reduce the deficit with the president's sitting on the sidelines," O'Neill said.

Senate Finance Committee Chairman Robert Dole, R-Kan., however, was not as downcast about the House vote.

"That's good," Dole said. "That means we may get my (deficit-reduction) package on when we come back." Congress intends to adjourn Friday and return Jan. 21.

The Senate, afraid to go it alone on raising taxes, had been waiting all day to see what the House would do with taxes before moving ahead with its own $23 billion deficit-reduction package of spending cuts and tax increases.

The Senate put off action on its bill until Friday and it was unclear whether it would try to pass it. A leadership aide indicated that if the House defeated the tax rule, there would be no incentive for the Senate to go out on a limb and vote to raise taxes.

Peru massacre grave found

AYACUCHO, Peru (UPI) — Justice officials Thursday discovered shallow graves containing the bodies of 27 Indian peasants, 12 of them children, who were dragged from a village wedding party by masked gunmen and shot, authorities said.

Town residents who witnessed the incident in Soccos, an Andean village, in southeast Peru about 15 miles outside Ayacucho, identified the gunmen as police agents and said the victims had been tortured.

Police denied they were involved and blamed guerrillas of the Maoist "Shining Path" group, which is most active in the Ayacucho region.

According to witness accounts, authorities said, the victims, rural Indian peasants, were celebrating a wedding Monday night when masked men burst into their house and rounded up the 27 occupants. Twelve were children.

The victims were then shot to death and their bodies dumped in a ravine near Soccos.

The massacre was not discovered until justice authorities found the burial site and verified the incident Thursday.

The bodies showed signs of having been tortured, said witnesses who watched the first bodies being dug out.

The killers apparently set off charges of dynamite to bring down mounds of dirt atop the bodies in an effort to bury the victims, they said.

The massacre was the worst of a wave of violence in the area. In the last week, about 30 corpses have been discovered in diverse sites near Ayacucho.

Most victims had been reported missing by their relatives and many of the families said the victims had been kidnapped from their homes in the middle of the night by masked police agents.

Evidence links suspect to murder

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (UPI) — Police said Thursday that evidence found in the house of Otis Elwood Toole links him to the murder of 6-year-old Adam Walsh, a crime he originally said he committed but then denied.

The evidence from the 1971 Cadillac was not disclosed but police said Toole remains the prime suspect in the case. Other evidence from the car, however, was "negative or inconclusive," said Hollywood Police Chief Sam Martin.

No charges have been filed in the case, Dave Casey, spokesman for the Broward County state attorney's office, said the evidence from Toole's car was still not enough to press charges.

Police searched the vehicle intensively two years after the murder, hoping to find blood, fibers, fingerprints or hair that might prove Adam had been in the car. The evidence was analyzed in state laboratories.

The results of the tests were turned over to Hollywood police Wednesday. "Certain evidence revealed negative or inconclusive results while certain other evidence is positive," Martin said in a statement. He would not disclose more details.

Martin would say only that police are attempting to reconstruct what Toole was doing before and after the murder.

Toole is awaiting trial in Jacksonville on unrelated murder and arson charges. Four weeks ago, he told police he abducted Adam outside a Hollywood shopping mall on July 27, 1981.

Toole said he killed Adam, cut off his head and buried the body near the Florida turnpike. He also confessed to 35 to 50 other murders, and provided details of the Walsh killing that Martin said "only the murderer would have known."

Six women to fly shuttles

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Crew rosters for four new space shuttle missions in 1984 and 1985 place Sally K. Ride — America's first woman in space — and Kathryn D. Sullivan on the same flight Aug. 30, NASA officials said Thursday.

The revised schedule announced at the same time calls for 10 shuttle flights in 1985 — one less than previously planned. The fourth and final mission of 1983 is scheduled to begin Nov. 28.

The August mission will mark the first flight of two women in space at the same time. Ms. Sullivan, a geologist, will become the first woman to walk in space.

The new schedule also features a third woman, Shannon Lucid, 40, of Bethany, Okla., to fly next Oct. 24 with four men.

In all, six of the eight women in the astronaut corps are slated to fly in 1984. The other three were announced previously. They are Anna Fisher and Rhea Seddon, both doctors, and Judith Resnik, an electrical engineer.

Ms. Ride, 32, an astrophysicist and mission specialist on the seventh-space shuttle, will become the first woman to venture into space twice.

Joining her and Ms. Sullivan, 32, on the Aug. 30 mission will be commander Robert L. Crippen, making his fourth flight; Jon A. McDermid, pilot, and David D. Leestma, mission specialist. Ride and Sullivan also will serve as mission specialists.

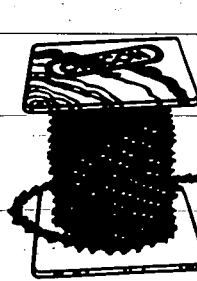

Lucid, a biochemist, will serve as a mission specialist on the flight scheduled for Oct. 24, 1984.

Other members of that crew include Daniel Brandenstein, commander; John O. Creighton, pilot; John M. Fabian, mission specialist, and Steven R. Nagel, mission specialist.

NASA also announced two other crews.

Reason gets crushed in rush to adjourn

Watching Congress conduct its business in recent days gives one something of an unsettled feeling. We wonder if there is not a better way to tackle the weighty issues of the day than with the flurry of activity that characterizes the periodic rushes to adjournment.

Congress is normally a sedate body, as the flow of bills trundles from committee to committee to floor to committee at a snail's pace. But as adjournment approaches, our lawmakers suddenly realize that a certain amount of work simply must be done.

That realization instantly transforms the tortoise into whirling dervishes of legislative activity.

As we watch the respective leaders whip their charges into a state of frenzy, we are reminded of school marm chastising recalcitrant students to ensure that lessons are completed before recess begins.

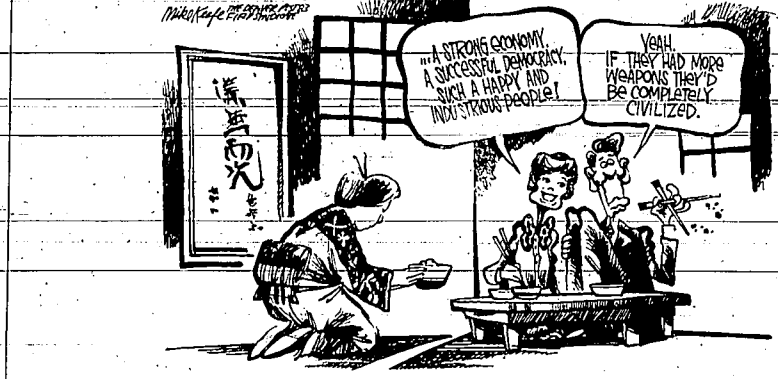

And we wonder if the lawmakers are leaving in their wakes the most intelligent and well-thought-out bills, as they scamper off to the playground.

A good example of the problem came Wednesday when both houses of Congress worked well into the wee hours to push through a crush of critical legislation. During that session, Congress reorganized the Civil Rights Commission, killed President Reagan's proposal for tuition tax credits, spent $10.5 billion on the departments of justice, state and commerce, and debated and voted on several measures to raise the federal debt ceiling.

Given that work load, we see no way for those important measures to receive the measured consideration they deserve.

Most businessmen would not dream of scheduling production the way Congress times its output. If they did, they could reasonably expect shoddy work as a result.

Congress should keep that in mind during its rush to adjournment.

Real Reagan speaks on 'civilized' war

BOSTON -- Somewhere in the middle of the President's trip to the Far East. In between the canned speeches and the photo opportunities, there was a spontaneous moment.

During a television interview in Japan, Reagan talked for a moment about the good old wars.

"Once upon a time," he said, "we had rules of warfare. War is an ugly thing, but we had rules in which we made sure that soldiers fought soldiers, but they did not victimize civilians. That was civilized. Today we've lost something of civilization in that the very (nuclear) weapons we're talking about are designed to destroy civilians by the millions. And let us, at least, get back to where we once were."

Now maybe, just maybe, he should be reassured by his comment. At least the President has noticed some difference between nuclear war and conventional war. But frankly, I find this little veiled nostalgia for the glory wars of a mythical history bizarre and telling.

There have surely been moments in world history when the brutality and horror of war were necessary to defend civilization. But never in my memory has a leader called war itself "civilized."

It was when that Reagan began his remarks with the phrase "once upon a time," because his vision of war existed only in fairy tales and screen plays. Perhaps war was civilized in the studio lots of Hollywood, in the rules and restraints operating over screenwriters.

But was it civilized behavior on that July 18, 1863 when 50,000 Americans died or were wounded at Gettysburg, and wagons carried away hundreds of amputated arms and legs? Was it civilized on July 1, 1916, when 57,000 Britons died in the Battle of the Somme? Was it civilized war that took the lives of 58,000 Americans in Vietnam?

These casualties were "just" soldiers, of course, and Reagan made a distinction between the sorts of wars that only involve military men -- do we still call them cannon fodder? -- and the wars that involve civilians. But this, too, is a distinction that exists only on the cinematic jousting fields of Camelot. War, real war, conventional war as we label it now, doesn't just take place on front lines.

We don't have to go back as far as Genghis Khan to list victimized civilians. In World War II, 7 million Russian civilians died in addition to 11 million soldiers. More than 70,000 British civilians died in the German bombing. About 135,000 German civilians died in the Allied bombing of Dresden. The Japanese to whom Reagan was speaking killed 100,000 Chinese civilians when they took over Nanking.

Of course if you prefer more recent figures, they are also available. About 14,000 Vietnamese civilians were killed during the Tet offensive of 1968. And if you prefer smaller figures, 22 residents of My Lai were killed by one American soldier. Those were the good old days, and the President says, "Let us at least get back to where we once were."

Am I making too much of a single exchange on a Japanese television program? I don't think so. Whenever Reagan comes out from behind a prepared text, it's time to listen. This is the real Reagan, on his own with neither a speech writer nor a poll taker to direct his action.

This time, after all the written peace speeches, the man personally expressed not so much a desire for peace as a frustration with the restraints of nuclear weapons. Nuclear war isn't fun, isn't "civilized."

Read through those lines, and you can comprehend the President's pleasure, and even the national support for the war in Grenada. Grenada made war fun again. Here we are, restrained from a big confrontation by the mutual suicide pact of the two superpowers. What a relief it was to discover that we can still smack someone small, still win one for the Gipper.

Bertrand Russell once said that, "People who are vigorous and brutal often find war enjoyable, provided that it is a victorious war and there is not too much interference with rape and plunder. This is a great help in persuading people that wars are right."

The President of the United States went beyond explaining why war may be right. He told us that it may be civilized. What a long way we've come from the days when war was hell.

Ellen Goodman writes for The Boston Globe.

Letters/Further comment on 'Godmakers' movie by a viewer

Film reaffirms long study

I am very disturbed by the letters that have appeared in "Letters to the Editor." In regard to the film "The Godmakers," I, too, have seen the film and did not find it "bitterly derisive" or "attack the beliefs and practices of another religion." Nor did I find the film a product of a "well-meaning hate group." I did not come away feeling "freedom and religious tolerance -- two great pillars of the American Republic" -- were threatened. In fact, I felt glad I live in a land where this film could be shown. I feel the film was well done and in good taste, and the contents comprehensive. Since most of the people speaking were either Mormons or ex-Mormons, I also felt the film was credible as well as factual.

All those in the audience were warned prior to showing the film that this was not a matter to be laughed at or taken lightly. It was, in fact, a serious business; that Mormon people, for the most part, are good people, moral people, but are a deceived people. Rules were set on behalf of those in the audience that were Mormon that no one would be allowed to make the question and answer period a forum, and it was understood that "bitterly derisive" or "attacking another's beliefs" would not be tolerated. Loving and praying for our Mormon friends was very much emphasized.

For myself, the film only reaffirmed what 25 years of studying Mormon beliefs had already shown me: that the source, the originator in the person of Joseph Smith, his history, its documents, and its doctrines are highly questionable -- in fact, objectively unbelievable.

I am compelled to speak up for Jesus Christ. The Holy Bible tells us there is one Lord, one God and Father of all who is above all, and through all, and in all (Ephesians 4:6-10). In fact, (as the film points out) my Mormon friends and I worship a different God and a different Jesus, and know a different Spirit, and we indeed must examine ourselves (and we owe those who prevent us) to see if we are in the right faith since there is only one, as Galatians 1:6-10 tells us, stand accused.

Jesus said of Himself, "... I am the way, the truth, and the life. No man cometh unto the Father but by Me." (John 14:6). The time has come to ask ourselves, "Whose way am I following... Jesus' way, or someone else's... way?"

Officials are human beings

What manner of men are we making of our public officials?

We decry the poor performance and broken promises of our politicians, but what can we expect when once they are in office, we put them in a straightjacket so they can no longer defend themselves and the principles for which they stand, throw them to mercuries grilling by the press until they have a "slip of the tongue" or say a word (wrong or right) that can be twisted to appear as a national disaster?

What politician can ever stand for anything worthy of our support and praise who must twist every word so that it can't be twisted or distorted by his enemies to discredit him or even force him to resign so he can be replaced by their own henchmen?

As I listened to the president being grilled under a bad situation, being forced to walk a tightrope so as not to offend anyone, I thought he was doing a good job of "being all things to all people." I felt his desperate search for diplomatic words that would not offend. Then when he had said them I thought that he had done a superb job. Not the forthright and outspoken position I wanted him to take, but the only politically motivated one he could take from the position into which he had been forced.

The said absolutely nothing for or against the assertion that King had communist connections, only that "we would know after 35 years." Yet the news media (I wouldn't say public opinion) demanded and received an apology from him.

This is insanity. Why must we allow such trivia to rob our public servants of their time and energy when world-shaking events and our very lives and liberty are at stake and need their attention?

Did you ever see an artist drawing of a public servant that wasn't a hideous caricature?

When are we going to start depicting them as human beings and affording them the same freedom of speech we demand for ourselves. When are we going to allow the Ronald Reagans, the James Wats, the Anne Burdets and the Earl Butts the freedom of candid and open speech such as we use against them without fear of a hatchet job?

He should investigate first

I read Cory Shipley's recent letter to the editor, regarding the ducks and geese at Sunset Memorial Park with amusement and disgust until I realized that this is the same Cory Shipley that was ordered by the city inspector to remove numerous fowl and rabbits from his home at 344 Van Buren Street in Twin Falls after numerous complaints from his neighbors.

I realize Cory is only a teenager, but it is time that this young man should learn that he should do some investigating before condemning Mr. Harney. I personally contacted Mr. Harney and found he was very cordial and open, and he stated he would gladly give me any information needed about the care of these fowl.

Mr. Harney went on to state that he has never purchased any ducks or geese, that people drop off their unwanted fowl which are often sick or injured. Mr. Harney is then stuck with them as other people are with stray cats or dogs.

The ducks and geese are fed corn and grains regularly, in addition to the copious amounts of bread and other treats people and their children give them daily.

Cory mentions a white Pekin duck, claiming it weighed only three or four pounds. I don't feel that Cory is a qualified ornithologist, knowing the size of the duck and what it should weigh at this time.

Cory states that he doesn't feel it's his responsibility to feed these ducks, however, I wonder, if he took some feed with him when he took the scale out to weigh the duck?

If Cory had taken the time to find the true facts about the Oriental deer, he would have found they had been transferred to a private ranch out of state. He claims that they were removed by the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. This is not right.

Cory is implying that Mr. Harney is a cruel person. I and many others feel that Mr. Harney is doing an apology. Cory, you should learn that it is just as important not to be cruel to people.

Sales confuse eighth grader

Dear Mr. President:
I'm an eighth grader; I'm 13 years old, and I'm confused. First, I want to tell you what I good job I think you're doing.
But I'm concerned about the United States falling into the arms of Communism. Mr. President, I'd like to know why are we, the United States of America, "the land of the free and the home of the brave" selling technology and equipment to the Soviet Union? Why are we doing this for our country? The freedom we've worked so hard for, the people who fought and died for our country, why? Don't you feel we owe it to our country to stop this act, selling our technology and equipment to the Soviet Union? Please stop this act.

Passage of years makes loss of Kennedy more poignant

On Nov. 22, 1963, I was teaching a ninth grade general science class at Christlansted High School in St. Croix in the U.S. Virgin Islands when news that President Kennedy had been fatally shot reached me.

I remember a hasty, fearful announcement over the intercom, school bells ringing, and classes being dismissed early. Teachers walked through muggy air toward the lounge. The sky was cloudy. I remember teachers huddled around a radio, listening for details. Hoping that Kennedy would live. I remember stifling heat and slacked ties. The widened gaze. I remember the anxiety in those eyes. The shock. The distrust.

St. Croix is close to Cuba, Kennedy's hard line on Cuba was understood and appreciated. Many of the homes of parents and island teachers had framed, color photographs of President Kennedy on their living room walls. He was loved. There were murmurs that Castro was the assassin.

John F. Kennedy was the only president I ever thought of as my president. Instead of merely the president. Twenty years, later I cannot watch the television specials about JFK's thousand days in office without feeling a constriction around my chest, and a need to cry.

I watch those specials, even though I know the terrible loss and regret I will experience. And I will watch Peter Jennings on ABC's special this Friday. I shall feel the loss, again. The years have not diminished that sense of unfulfilled potential, of shattered promise. The years have only made the loss more poignant.

When Kennedy was elected, I had just earned my second bachelor's degree. I was full of ideals and energy. Kennedy and his New Frontier made the dreams of young men and women respectable, useful. He tapped into them. He offered us direction. Many of us were eager to use our energy in the service of his New Frontier.

Newly married, my wife and I had applied to the Peace Corps. Not to impose American culture and technology on the countries of Africa or South America, but to help and to learn from the people where we were sent.

That was the prevailing view of Peace Corps trainees then. We would learn to be better neighbors in the world. It seems like a naive dream now; it didn't then. Cynicism about that dream only came later, with other presidents.

Five weeks into Peace Corps training the Berlin Wall Crisis began. And the military was put on alert. Since I was a commissioned officer, the crisis ended my short term with the Peace Corps, but not the dream it represented. Not for others. Not then.

America went through many crises with President Kennedy. Beside his assassination, the situation which etched its way into our memories was the Cuban Missile Crisis. No doubt most people who lived through that crisis can remember Oct. 22, 1962 very clearly.

At that time, my wife and I were living in New York City. The city would be a target in the event of nuclear war. We didn't believe in the efficacy of bomb shelters. My wife didn't go to work. I didn't go to the university. We spent the day listening to the radio and talking. We drank a bottle of wine in the afternoon. We talked about what we would do when the Russian missiles were launched in our direction. We would walk outside, in the streets. We would die there. We waited. We were quiet many of those hours. Outside, the sun was bright. It was a clear fall day in New York City.

Those were years of turmoil. I didn't like everything the Kennedy administration did. There were times I was critical. Perspective of twenty years was made some of his administration's actions excellent to me. I say this not as a political commentator, for I do not have the depth of knowledge for that, but as an individual who loved his president, but not blindly.

In those days the press spoke of "charisma." Kennedy had an ability to open people's hearts to a vision which shone brightly. Something good, something right. Something about trust. And we wanted to believe, to follow. He won our devotion. I understand then what my father had said about the ordinary soldier willing to follow Napoleon anywhere, into any death.

There was something about President Kennedy that made him a surrogate father to so many of us. Especially to those who were young. But not that only. His charisma drew from many of us an experience which had something of the nature of one's first deep love. No matter what hurts or disappointments this love may bring, the love endures. It doesn't matter if there are disagreements and anger, the love endures.

After Kennedy's death, we took a freighter to Japan, to purge my anger at the assassination, at the subsequent whitewash. Like mercury on a quarter, what had shone brightly had suddenly turned dull gray. I needed to leave America for awhile.

Twenty years later, what continues to hurt is the hollow space of unattained hopes. Those dreams which were blown apart in a Dallas street. The bright promise on an unfolding story which ended prematurely with a bullet hole, like a final uncompromising period.

Drug probe hits ex-officials

By BARBARA ROSEWICZ
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The House ethics committee Thursday found "substantial evidence" that former Reps. Barry Goldwater, R-Calif., John Burton, D-Calif., and Fred Richmond, D-N.Y., bought or used cocaine or marijuana while in office.

The committee's report, wrapping up a 16-month, $1.5 million investigation, dismissed allegations that Rep. Ronald DeLuca, D-Calif., Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Texas, and seven other current House members had used drugs on Capitol Hill.

But it found "substantial evidence" that three former members of the House purchased and/or used illicit drugs on Capitol Hill while they were members" in 1978-82.

The investigation also turned up evidence that as many as 11 current House employees, ranging from doorkeeper's workers to congressional aides, have been or still are involved in illegal drug activity. The evidence has been turned over to their bosses, the report said.

The report did not identify the three former congressmen suspected of drug use, but committee special counsel Joseph Califano listed them as Goldwater, Burton and Richmond. All three left office last year.

Califano told a news conference that Richmond and Burton testified to the committee under a grant of immunity about their drug use. He said Goldwater refused to testify about his own use of drugs, but told investigators he was unaware of any current congressmen using drugs.

Califano said one of the congressmen said he used marijuana as a substitute for sleeping pills "for many, many years," and the other testified he developed a "chemical dependency" on alcohol, cocaine and sedatives in response to the "high stress nature of his job." Califano refused to say which congressmen made which statement.

Although the ethics panel also looked into allegations against seven other members, it said the charges were "mere speculation and hearsay, without evidentiary support."

Storms pound West, Great Lakes

By DAVID SMOTHERS
United Press International

A new storm and the remnants of an old one rammed mounting snows and pounding rains into the West Thursday and plastered parts of the eastern Great Lakes states with high winds and up to a foot of snow.

The new storm off the Pacific Ocean washed the west slopes of the Sierra Nevada with up to 5 inches of rain and piled up close to a half foot of snow around San Valley, Idaho.

More snow was expected and a cold front was coming to push the system eastward.

As the storm mounted, hopes of getting four duck hunters out alive from the snowy mountains around Leadville, Colo., sank.

The weather crippled another mountain search. Divers could not enter the Clark Fork River in Idaho to find what happened to two young canoeists whose craft overturned Monday.

A far-traveling Pacific storm that punished the Northeast with rain and snow Wednesday was long gone Thursday, but what is called "lake effect" — snows off the Great Lakes — took its leftovers and turned them into heavy snows across parts of Ohio, New York State, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Up to 8 inches of gusting snow off the Great Lakes hit New York's Chautauque County and Guys Mills, Pa. A half foot of snow fell on Geauga and Portage Counties, Ohio.

Position sought for adviser

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The power of the president's national security adviser should be made official by redesignating the post "Director of National Security," former adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski Thursday.

Effective coordination of foreign policy can only be achieved from the White House, argued Brzezinski, who held the national security post under President Carter.

Brzezinski told the Senate Armed Services Committee the new position would "make real power into legitimate authority" and subject nominees for the post to Senate confirmation.

Brent Scowcroft, President Ford's national security adviser, told the panel that although he agreed with Brzezinski's analysis, he did not agree with many of his recommendations.

Scowcroft said it would be a mistake to give the national security adviser more stature than the secretary of defense or the secretary of state. He noted that each member of the council has his or her own constituency to represent.

There were reports last summer that President Reagan's national security adviser, William Clark, had supplanted Secretary of State George Shultz as the chief architect of administration foreign policy.

Dieting disorder hurts heart

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — The dieting disorder anorexia nervosa can cause an irregular, potentially fatal heartbeat of the kind that killed singer Karen Carpenter, the American Heart Association was told Thursday.

Dr. Jeffery Isner said a potentially fatal slowdown between electrical signals telling the heart to contract and relax was found in autopsy studies of three victims of the disease.

The electrical disturbance is called "QT interval prolongation" and leads to one of the most deadly forms of arrhythmia, or irregular heartbeat. Isner, of the Tufts-New England Medical Center in Boston, told the meeting.

"For reasons that are not entirely clear," he said, "patients with QT interval prolongation are particularly susceptible to malignant cardiac arrhythmias — those which if not treated within a couple of minutes can cause sudden death."

Pop singer Karen Carpenter, an anorectic, died because chemical imbalances made her heart beat irregularly and eventually stop, acting Los Angeles County Coroner Ronald Kornblum said last March after performing an autopsy.

Miss Carpenter, who along with her brother formed the popular 1970s duo, "The Carpenters," died in February at the age of 32 after a long fight against the psychophysiological disorder.

19.5 million smokers discard cigarettes

By United Press International

A record 19.5 million cigarette smokers — 35.6 percent of the nation's estimated 55 million — joined the seventh Annual Great American Smokerout Thursday, the American Cancer Society announced.

The society said a telephone survey of 123 households showed 29 percent of the men smokers and 43.7 percent of the women smokers were attempting to complete the 24-hour, mass nicotine fast.

The 19.5 million figure was half a million more than the figure for last year's smokerout, the society said.

A Gallup organization survey to be conducted in several weeks will find how many lasted 24 hours this time around, the society said. In last year's Smokerout, 4.5 million smokers hung on for the full period.

Few Smokerout groups had a schdoff to match the one in Carrollton, Ga., where the entire town of 35,000 vowed to quit smoking for the required 24 hours.

At a pre-Smokerout pep rally and bonfire, cheerleaders from West Georgia College cheered, "Breathe — breathe — We take it all for granted — but if we keep on smoking — in the ground we will be planted."

Mayor Tracy Stallings already had consumed about 15 cups of coffee before noon Thursday, but he was determined to adhere to the town's vow not to smoke.

"I've drunk a lot of hot coffee and a lot of cold water," said Stallings, who got an early start on the smoke-out by quitting the habit around noon Wednesday. "It's not been that bad, but it sure hasn't been easy," either."

— Millions of smokers across the nation pit their willpower against their craving in the annual exercise.

Pop firm sells for millions

DALLAS (UPI) — The board of directors of Dr. Pepper Co. approved the sale of the nation's No. 3 soft drink maker to Forstman Little & Co., a private investment firm, for $512.5 million, in cash Thursday.

Under the conditions of the agreement, Forstman Little & Co. would pay $22 per share for more than 23 million outstanding shares of Dr. Pepper common stock, said Dr. Pepper spokesman Corky Brown.

Brown said the agreement with Forstman Little, which recently bought Topps Chewing Gum for $85 million, is subject to approval of stockholders, closing of bank loan agreements and signing of a definitive merger agreement.

Under the agreement, it is expected that senior management of Dr. Pepper will be offered an equity participation in the acquiring company, Brown said. He said Forstman Little is a private investment firm which specializes in leveraged buyouts.

The announcement late Thursday broke 24 hours of silence by Dr. Pepper which had prompted industry rumors that a merger or a sale was imminent to bail the company out of its financial predicament.

Cracks found on engine mounts of new jets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cracks have been discovered on engine mount parts in at least four U.S. Navy and Canadian FA-18 Hornet fighter bombers that have flown only 300 hours; the Navy and the plane's prime contractor acknowledged Thursday.

Canada, which has taken delivery of about 20 of the 138 Hornets it has bought in a $5 billion program, has grounded three of the jets although the Navy has not issued orders to keep its FA-18s from flying, the Navy and Canadian sources said.

Each aircraft, the Navy's newest and most expensive attack aircraft that has been plagued with specification problems, costs about $36 million. The Hornet is not yet operational and is to go to sea aboard the aircraft carrier Constellation sometime next year.

A crack in a piece of steel webbing holding the engine mount to the inside of the airframe in the twin-engine Hornet first was found July 6 during routine maintenance at Lemoore, Calif., spokesman for the Navy and McDonnell-Douglas, the aircraft's builder, said. They added the crack does not represent a safety problem.

Cracks have been found in four out of the 130 planes delivered to the Navy and Canada that have flown more than 300 hours, the McDonnell spokesman said.

The St. Louis-based firm has ordered maintenance checks of the webbing on planes that have flown more than 300 hours, less than a year of routine flying, with follow-up inspections after 500 hours, the firm's spokesman said.

The lifespan of the Hornet's airframe is estimated at 12,000 hours. The 300-hour flight time is the equivalent of about 2,500 miles put on a car expected to last 100,000 miles.

Quake damage sightseeing draw

VOLCANO, Hawaii (UPI) — Giant new cracks in the earth were cordoned off by park rangers Thursday to allow sightseers to safely reach the rim of the Kilauea volcano and gawk at damage from an earthquake that rocked the island.

"This is going to be our earthquake exhibit," said Jon Erickson, a ranger at the Hawaii Volcanoes National Park.

"People will be able to walk out to the Waldron Ledge area, where some of the most impressive damage occurred, and see where the old Crater Rim Drive fell into the caldera."

A portion of the drive was reopened Thursday after crews worked late into the night filling cracks so people could also reach the Hawaii Volcano Observatory on the Kilauea crater rim.

The Kilauea volcano summit area is about 10 miles from the epicenter of the 6.7-magnitude quake that struck Hawaii at 6:13 a.m. Wednesday. The epicenter was four miles into a fault zone separating two active volcanoes, Mauna Loa and Kilauea. Damage was estimated at $4 million, including damage in most of the private homes in Volcano village near the Kilauea summit.

"There are some lessons people have learned here and will soon forget, and that is when you build a house in Hawaii, you should at least bolt it to the foundation," said volcanologist Robert Decker.

Decker, chief scientist at the U.S. Geological Survey observatory, was in a plane when the quake struck and saw the 40-second ripping of the earth's crust from the air.

Geophysicist Dallas Jackson was the first to arrive at the damaged observatory. "It's as if someone just took the observatory and just shook it in their hands — and everything would move around like in a dollhouse," he said.

Garron Alexander, a ceramic artist, lost his entire collection when the quake shook his artist's retreat in Volcano village, crumbling a lava rock chimney and toppling pottery and furnishings to the floor. He gathered all that was left of his ceramics into 5-gallon buckets.

"It's not like death and not as bad as divorce — that's real traumatic — but it makes you think," Alexander said.

Judge agrees with parents of infant

By HENRY LOGEMAN
United Press International

UNIONDALE, N.Y. — A federal judge Thursday supported the decision by the parents of severely malformed Baby Jane Doe to refuse surgery for the child by blocking a government attempt to obtain the infant's medical records.

The Reagan administration and right-to-life groups sought the records to decide whether the child had been discriminated against because of her handicaps — and to move a step closer to forcing a court-ordered operation.

The parents of the 38-day-old child who suffers from an open spine, water on the brain and other birth defects — opposed the surgery because they said it would prolong the child's pain and suffering.

"She would never know love. And while she might feel sorrow and joy, her overall condition would be pain," the child's mother has said in defending her decision.

U.S. District Court Judge Leonard Wexler ruled, "The decision of the parents was a reasonable one based on due consideration of the medical options available and on a genuine concern for the best interests of the child."

He said there was "no discrimination" against the baby in the treatment being given her at University Hospital at Stony Brook, N.Y.

"The government cannot operate without the parents' consent and there was no such consent," the judge said to a hushed courtroom. One person in the court clapped after hearing the ruling, but otherwise the courtroom remained silent.

The parents were not in court, but their attorney, Paul Gianelli, said: "I'm sure they are extremely happy. I hope this is the end of having to defend the painful decision. I was surprised by the courage of the judge."

Gianelli said the legal costs borne by the parents since the case first went to court last month amounted to some $40,000.

Attorneys have said the case could have national impact on the administration's policy in discrimination cases, but Wexler said he did not regard the decision as a "landmark ruling."

Deputy Assistant U.S. Attorney Charles Cooper, disagreed, saying Wexler's decision could provide a major obstacle to full investigation and enforcement of federal health and civil rights regulations.

"We thought the law was on our side and we did not expect this decision," he said, adding that a decision to appeal would be made "in the very near future."

The baby was born Oct. 11 in Port Jefferson, N.Y., and the parents, known only as Mr. and Mrs. A, have prevailed against a series of attempts to force court-ordered surgery to correct the open spine.

Court halts execution

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Maurice Paul blocked the execution of Stephen Todd Booker Thursday, just hours before the Death Row inmate was to die in the electric chair.

The federal judge ordered a hearing on the merits of the appeal for Dec. 6. Booker's attorneys argued the case before Paul Wednesday, but he waited to issue his ruling until the Florida Supreme Court decided a similar appeal. The Supreme Court denied Booker's appeal two hours earlier.

Booker, 30, was scheduled to die in the electric chair at 7 a.m. Friday at Florida State Prison near Starke for the 1977 murder of a 94-year-old Gainesville woman.

In a one-hour hearing before the Supreme Court Thursday Jeffrey Weiner, one of a group of lawyers handling Booker's defense, urged the court to order a new evidentiary hearing on the claim Booker's trial counsel had been ineffective.

Alachua County Circuit Judge John Crews had rejected the claim of ineffective counsel following a hearing Monday. Weiner told the justices the hearing before Crews had been a "sham."

"There is no harm in waiting," Weiner told the justices. "Booker's not going anywhere... If we lose in the long run, so be it. But it won't happen. Booker won't be executed."

The Supreme Court disagreed by a 6-0 vote and issued an eight-page opinion denying Booker's motion for a stay.

McGovern still optimistic

CHICAGO (UPI) — Former Sen. George McGovern, humiliated by Richard Nixon in one of the greatest presidential election landslides in history, predicted an uphill battle Thursday in his bid for the Democratic nomination this time around.

"I admit it's uphill but I really think I have a shot," the former senator from South Dakota said during question and answer session with reporters.

"There's a good chance by the time I get to the caucuses in Iowa and New Hampshire I'll be in the top three."

McGovern, who carried only Massachusetts and the District of Columbia in his landslide loss to Richard Nixon in the 1972, said that defeat could possibly help him in 1984.

"A lot of people who voted for Nixon are going to come over to my side," he said. "So it's a whole new ball game."

McGovern scheduled appearances Thursday at DePaul University and Northwestern University in Evanston in an attempt to win the renewed support of students.

"One of the purposes of my visit today is to recruit campaign workers," McGovern said.

A fund-raiser was also scheduled at the Northwestern campus.

Mobster refuses 50 questions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Reputed Chicago mobster Anthony "Big Time" Accardo refused 50 times Thursday to answer questions by a Senate investigations subcommittee about organized crime in Chicago and his influence in the labor movement.

Subcommittee chairman William Roth, R-De., said he intends to initiate contempt of Congress action against Accardo.

Accardo, 77, refused repeatedly to answer questions about his acquaintances, whether he was involved in any Chicago crime organization, if he was head of any group known as "mob, the outfit, Mafia, Cosa Nostra," or if he had taken part in chartering unions.

Accardo was called before the Senate Government Operations Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations, after a witness in April alleged that Accardo "hand picked" the president of two major unions — the Hotel and Restaurant Employees union and the Longshoremen's union.

Despite invoking an immunity law in efforts to force Accardo to talk, the senators ended the questioning after 65 minutes, declaring that Accardo was not cooperating.

"It is the intent of the chairman to proceed with contempt proceedings," said Roth.

Accardo refused 50 times to answer questions — including how he paid the mortgage on a mansion in the Chicago suburb of River Forest — saying he believed they were based on illegal wiretaps.

At other points, he said he could not recall events or did not know people, including one union president who was identified as his next-door neighbor in Palm Springs, Calif.

In a 1958 appearance before the same panel, Accardo took the 50th Amendment over 130 times when asked about mob activities and his background.

FTC national program to settle GM lawsuits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission, settling a three-year-old complaint with General Motors, ordered a nationwide arbitration program Thursday to settle thousands of complaints about GM engines and transmissions.

In entering a consent agreement with GM, the commission settled its 1980 administrative complaint that accused the No. 1 automaker of failing to notify customers of serious defects.

The order creates a special mediation program headed by the Better Business Bureau. The FTC said arbitration provided a quicker and more certain means of relief than litigation that could take years.

The FTC's 3-1 decision came over objections from 20 state attorney generals and the Ralph Nader-founded Center for Auto Safety.

The FTC estimated that 200,000 or more of the 21 million cars produced by GM since 1974 will be subjects of settlements averaging between $400 and $500 under the arbitrations. GM's total repair bill is expected to be about $56 million.

But opponents said the commission's decision will leave consumers at unfair disadvantage in fighting for redress.

"It will be like sending a team of Chinese, who have never seen or studied or played the game of football, into a contest with the Dallas Cowboys," Commissioner Michael Pertschuk, who cast the dissenting vote, quoted one disgruntled lawyer as writing.

Commissioner Patricia Bailey said the settlement "is not perfect, but despite its imperfections, I am persuaded it represents an immediate, fair and certain means of compensating the class of GM owners whose interest we represent."

By a 5-to-1 margin, letters received by the FTC since seeking comment on the proposed agreement April 27 opposed the program.

But GM Vice President James Vorhes called the agreement as "fair and reasonable, and a much better deal for the customer than prolonged litigation could have ever achieved."

Carol Crawford, head of the FTC's Bureau of Consumer Protection, told reporters the program "will result in speedier results for consumers" than pursuing the lawsuit that could take up to 10 years.

Reagan bids Watt farewell

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan and a "who's who" of the New Right and Western conservatives gathered for a farewell party at the White House Wednesday evening in honor of departed Interior Secretary James Watt.

The White House confirmed a Washington Times report that Reagan told the group Watt's performance over 33 months was a period of intense controversy over his pro-development policies — was the "best kept secret in town."

During a reception in the Roosevelt Room, Reagan said that Watt had added more land to federal holdings than at any time since the purchase of Alaska.

Watt delivered his resignation to Reagan to douse a controversy fanned by his remark that he had "a black ... a woman, two Jews and a cripple" on an advisory committee.

No gas measure this year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House committee put off action until next year on an administration-backed natural gas deregulation bill Tuesday after voting down two amendments to roll back gas prices.

Chairman John Dingell, D-Mich., adjourned the meeting of the House Energy and Commerce Committee "subject to the call of the chair."

He made it clear the bill will not be taken up again until Congress, set to adjourn Friday for the holidays, returns next January.

Before giving up on the bill, the committee voted 31-7 against an amendment offered by Rep. Cardiss Collins, D-Ill., to roll-back ceiling prices to 1977 levels.

A milder amendment offered by Rep. Thomas Luken, D-Ohio, calling for a price rollback to 1982 levels and continued control of cheap "old" gas from wells drilled prior to 1977, failed on a 23-19 vote.

Opponents of the amendments called them an "oversimplistic" effort to lower consumer prices and said deregulation alone would bring down prices by increasing supply.

The controversial bill would amend the Natural Gas Policy Act of 1973, which imposes price ceilings but lets them rise in step with inflation. The 1973 law has raised prices to consumers despite a surplus of natural gas.

Victim's body pulled from train wreck

BLANCHARD, La. (UPI) — Crews digging through charred rubble Thursday found the body of a workman crushed by a 73-car freight train which was derailed off the main line onto a spur where it crashed into loaded flatcars and exploded.

The body of J.D. Mosley, 49, of Coushatta, La., was pulled from beneath a burned-out railroad car, said Caddo Parish Sheriff's Major J.W. Jones.

Mosley was part of a Kansas City Southern crew working on a rail spur into the Houston-Texas area near the Texas-Louisiana border Wednesday when, for an unknown reason, the train was switched from the main tracks onto the spur and it slammed into flat cars loaded with pulp wood.

"We believe he was killed instantly. We believe the train hit him," Jones said.

Haughton Timber employee Tommy Hicks, 47, of Karnack, Texas, was hospitalized in Shreveport in serious condition with multiple fractures. Another Haughton employee and four railroad employees died and require hospitalization.

"We heard the train coming and the next thing we heard was somebody holler," said Tony Shoemaker, Haughton foreman. "I could see my two men who were on top of the (flat) car fall off to the right side. I ran to the office for help, and when I looked back all I could see was just a big ball of fire.

"From what I understand ... they did not switch the track fast enough and the train came off the main track into my yard and ran into the back of us."

The impact shoved the train's five locomotives together like an accordion, and diesel fuel in the first engine exploded into a 400-foot wide fireball. The remaining locomotives and at least two other cars were jarred from the tracks and engulfed in flames.

Trial begins for fired EPA official

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rita Lavelle, the fired EPA Superfund chief, went on trial Thursday on charges of perjury and obstructing a congressional investigation into the toxic waste clean-up program.

U.S. District Judge Norma Johnson took about a half day to select a jury, and prosecution and defense lawyers prepared to begin their opening arguments.

Miss Lavelle, former head of the Environmental Protection Agency's toxic waste clean-up program, faces a possible 25 years in prison and $21,000 in fines if convicted on all five felony counts against her.

The charges stem from allegations that she lied under oath during a congressional investigation and impeded the probe of a controversial toxic waste enforcement case involving Aerojet-General Corp., her former employer in California.

Four of the counts focus on her testimony to two congressional panels and a sworn statement to a third that she was unaware before June 17, 1982, that Aerojet-General was a potentially responsible party in the clean-up case involving the Stringfellow Acid Pits near Glen Avon, Calif.

EPA officials told a congressional subcommittee earlier this year that Miss Lavelle was informed by her staff on May 28, 1982, of Aerojet-General's potential liability for the Stringfellow site, but that she did not withdraw from the case until about three weeks later.

Miss Lavelle, 35, of San Diego, was acquitted July 22 on misdemeanor charges of contempt of Congress stemming from her refusal to obey a House subcommittee subpoena.

She is the only present or former EPA official to be indicted on charges arising from the scandal that rocked the agency earlier this year.

More than 20 of President Reagan's appointees to the EPA resigned or were dismissed during the controversy. Reagan fired Miss Lavelle last Feb. 7, following a dispute she had with former EPA Administrator Anne Burford.

Two White House officials and 45 present or former EPA officials may testify at the trial.

The most prominent name on the prosecution's witness list is that of Mrs. Burford, former EPA administrator who resigned last March as the agency was engulfed in a firestorm of criticism from allegations of mismanagement, "sweetheart deals" with corporate polluters, conflicts of interest and political manipulation of the $1.6 billion federal toxic waste clean-up.

Doctor glut coming

CHICAGO (UPI) — An economist Thursday said it is time for the American Medical Association to recommend at least modest cutbacks in future admissions to medical schools in the United States.

"I have viewed with growing misgivings all aggressive interventions at both state and federal levels to force curbing of the physician glut," supply," Bill Ginzberg said in a Journal of the American Medical Association commentary.

"Many, probably most, economists believe that a goal of more physicians is desirable public policy because it will improve access and lower fees," he said. "I disagree on both counts."

More physicians mean more services and higher — not lower — total costs, he said.

Despite large increases in the ratio of physicians per 100,000 population — from 140 in 1950 to 200 in 1980 — most medical services in inner city neighborhoods continue to be provided by hospital-outpatient departments and clinics rather than by private practitioners, he said.

Ginzberg said the AMA leadership must move quickly to recommend "at least modest cutbacks" in future admissions to American medical schools.

Dr. Donald B. Louria of the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey in Newark said in a letter to the editor medical school enrollment must be cut by 20 percent by the fall of 1983 to prevent a "massive doctor glut."

Also in the Journal, Dr. Marjorie A. Bowman and colleagues at Georgetown University in Washington D.C. suggested previous studies have over-estimated the surplus of physicians expected by 1990.

In 1980, the Graduate Medical Education-National Advisory Committee projected a surplus of 68,750 physicians by 1990 based upon population needs and manpower projections for 32 medical specialties.

But, they excluded six specialties such as radiology, pathology and anesthesiology. With those included, 473,000 rather than 466,500 full-time physicians will be needed by 1990 — reducing the projected surplus from 15 to 13.3 percent, they said.

Auditors say agencies abusing funds

By BRUCE BOTKA
United Press International

BOISE — Legislative auditors said Thursday several Idaho agencies must keep better records when handling federal funds to prevent the possible loss of millions of dollars in grants.

Auditors told the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee that shoddy record-keeping was especially noticeable in the Office on Aging, which funnels federal money to regional and local agencies for programs to assist the elderly.

A total of 17 audits and informal financial reviews were presented during the day-long meeting at the Statehouse in Boise.

Most reports included relatively technical bookkeeping recommendations, but one critical audit outlined several specific abuses in the Agriculture Department.

Agriculture officials were criticized for failing to update fee schedules — some charges haven't been boosted for about 40 years — inadequately supervising workers and permitting repeated abuses of telephone and travel privileges.

But agency Director Max Hanson told the committee many of the problems had been corrected and several employees had been disciplined.

Bruce Balderson, head of the legislative-auditing office, said he cannot verify the status of about $11 million in grants funneled through the Office on Aging to local agencies that provide such programs as home-delivered meals and senior citizen employment.

"I am very uncomfortable as to what may have occurred to that $11 million," he said. There is a "remote possibility" the federal government could demand repayment of grants if the state cannot properly account for the funds, he added.

Horse carcasses save hunters from death

COUNCIL, Idaho (UPI) — Two hunters say they would have frozen to death on a windswept mountaintop near Council if they had not decided to shoot their horses, then crawl inside the cut-open carcasses for warmth.

Richard Dailey, 35, and Steven McCoy, 27, said they took horses up Cuddy Mountain last week to retrieve a shot deer.

They butchered the four-point buck, loaded it on their horses and started back for Dailey's pickup truck when they encountered a fierce storm.

"If you've never been there, you probably couldn't imagine it. But the wind must have been blowing 80 miles an hour," said Dailey, a fireman. McCoy, a dairy employee, added, "The wind was tearing my poncho to shreds."

Battered by sleet and soaked to the skin, the men soon found snowdrifts had obliterated all signs showing them the way back to the truck.

As darkness set in, the men began to suffer from hypothermia — a lowering of body temperature that can result in unconsciousness and death.

Dailey said he tried to start a fire, but the gale kept blowing out his matches. The hunters cut some raw meat from the deer for food, but said the meal did little to restore their strength.

"By then I was nervous. We were losing heat by the minute," Dailey said.

He said the Caldwell men were, two exhausted to build a shelter. Dailey tried to skin the deer, hoping its hides would protect them against the cold.

"But I couldn't function after half the hide was skinned out," he said. "I was watching Steve. His clothes weren't as wind-resistant as mine, and he was just standing there almost asleep and watching me," he said.

At about 9 p.m. the men decided to shoot each other's horse. They slit the bellies, removed some organs and crawled inside.

"The thought of the blood and guts was a little bit gross," said Dailey. "But I didn't care. You can't imagine how cold we were."

He said the animals became cold about five hours later, but by then the hunters had regained enough strength to walk six miles to the truck.

PUC chief: Economists are 'selling themselves'

By MARK SHENFELT

BOISE — State Public Utilities Commission President Conley Ward said Thursday consumers are paying dearly for federal regulatory decisions crafted with the advice of professional economists who have been "selling themselves" for personal gain.

"This reliance on economists and expert witnesses has gotten out of hand," he said. "Economists have been using their academic credentials and selling themselves. It's time for this to stop."

Ward told the Governor's Symposium on the Idaho Economy that "incest" between high-paid corporate economists and federal regulatory rulings that he believes threaten to unravel state economies.

The divestiture of American Telephone and Telegraph Co. and deregulation of the airlines and railroads have unfairly driven up costs for individuals and small businesses while allowing major corporations — and their economic consultants — to boost profits.

He said the Federal Communications Commission's recent ruling that paves the way for local telephone "access charges" resulted from lobbying by AT&T consultants, who he said "wear sheepskins that are supposed to make them bona fide."

"These people are living very well and doing very little (for consumers)," he said. "It's time for economists to clean this up. I know a lot of people in that profession are as mortified by this as I am."

Ward said many state regulatory agencies, including Idaho's PUC, remain responsive to public needs. But he said the FCC and other federal regulatory bodies operate with "a revolving door of regulators and the regulated."

Leaders criticized for pursuing 'high-tech fad'

BOISE (UPI) — State officials trying to promote development are magnificently pursuing "the high-tech fad" while neglecting traditional resource-based industries, a member of the Idaho Economic Research Council charged Thursday.

Jack Peterson, an Idaho Mining Association executive and economist who sits on the research panel, criticized state Economic and Community Development Director David Porter for saying the state must be wary of development by "smokestack" industries.

"Very frankly, most Idaho communities would not welcome a heavy manufacturing facility in their town," Porter said in a paper he presented during the Governor's Symposium on the Idaho Economy. "They want clean, white-collar industry of high-tech."

Peterson, both at the meeting and later in an interview, criticized Porter's emphasis on attracting such high-technology businesses as electronics.

Cities, counties seek control

COEUR D'ALENE (UPI) — Groups representing Idaho cities and counties say they will ask the 1984 legislature for increased local control of state tax revenues.

The Idaho Association of Cities and the Association of Idaho Counties decided Wednesday to seek passage of a law mandating one-half-cent of the state's 4 1/2-cent sales tax be returned to local governments.

The groups, which met in Coeur d'Alene to review their legislative platforms before lawmakers and local government officials, also decided to ask legislators to approve a local option room and liquor tax.

Another proposal would allow cities and counties the chance to decide for themselves whether to adopt a one-cent sales tax within their own boundaries.

Idaho Association of Cities spokesman Jim Weatherly said his group, which lobbies on behalf of city government interests, paired down its platform from 17 bills in 1982 to 3 this year.

"We want to make one point and make it very clearly," he said. "Cities in this state are in dire need of additional revenues."

Coeur d'Alene Mayor Jim Fromm said he is uncertain the legislature will agree to "share the wealth" by approving the plan to transfer tax revenues to cities.

But, Fromm added, he had high hopes for the approval of the local option tax, which would allow cities with at least 10,000 population to levy up to a 5 percent tax on liquor by the drink and hotel and motel rooms.

City outlaws in-house games

NAMPA (UPI) — Nampa officials say they have ordered a city employee to stop playing video games on municipal computers, and the worker has agreed to repay tax money he used to buy components for the games.

City Engineer Larry Bledsoe said Thursday Waste Water Department superintendent Gary Towell would repay the city $60 used to buy "joysticks," devices used to control video games.

Bledsoe also said Towell would reimburse the Water Department's pop-machine-profit fund $200 he used to buy a color television, which also was used with the computer games.

Bledsoe said the video game controversy was "blown a little bit out of proportion," but after looking into the situation he decided Towell's game-playing would have to end.

Towell, who will take possession of the joystick and the television, was on vacation and could not be reached for comment.

Arrests made in family disappearance

By CATHERINE GEWERTZ
United Press International

LOS ANGELES — Two Americans and an Englishman were arrested Thursday for the murders of four members of an Israeli immigrant family, and a British couple who mysteriously disappeared from their suburban homes last year.

Police Chief Daryl Gates said the arrests were based on incriminating statements by one of the suspects. He conceded evidence in the case was "slim," and said there was "a distinct possibility" they would be released for lack of evidence.

Sol and Elaine Salomon and their two children, aged 9 and 15, disappeared in October 1982 from their home in the San Fernando Valley, seven months after Peter and Joan Davis vanished from their house a few miles away.

Harvey Rader, 41, a British immigrant who lives in Los Angeles, and Gerald Baxter, 56, of Carmel, Calif., were arrested at their homes early Thursday. Ashley Paulie, 43, a London cab driver, was escorted to Los Angeles Sunday by a detective from Scotland Yard and was booked Wednesday.

"Paulie has made statements implicating himself and the other two (suspects)," Gates said. "He has indicated that both families have been murdered."

The victims' bodies have not been found, he added.

Police said Salomon and Davis had both patronized Rader's car repair shop, named Mr. Motor of London, and said Paulie, his cousin, worked there at the time of the disappearances.

Rader was believed to be the last person to see Salomon before the family disappeared. Early in the investigation he told police he dropped Salomon off at a restaurant October 12, then went to his home and told Mrs. Salomon her husband — who dealt in classic cars — was at an auction buying a vehicle.

Police found fresh bloodstains in the Salomons' home and a few days later discovered some of their belongings discarded alongside a freeway.

Paulie was believed to be the last person to see the Davises before they vanished March 17.

Police said the Davises left their dinner on the stove and the sliding glass door to their bedroom open. Several art objects were missing from their home, and their car was found a few days later at International Airport.

Davis was an art collector and second-hand car dealer, and Gates said burglary was a possible motive for the slayings. No motive had been established for the Salomon slayings.

Police Cmdr. William Booth said the three suspects were believed to be business associates.

Court OKs magazine law

DENVER (UPI) — The 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that a law enacted in Wichita, Kan., in 1979 to keep Playboy, Penthouse and similar magazines out of the sight of youngsters was constitutional.

The court Wednesday upheld a federal judge's ruling denying injunctive and declaratory relief sought by the M.S. News Co., a wholesale and retail distributor of magazines and other publications.

The company argued unsuccessfully that the law, to prohibit the promotion of sexually oriented materials to children, was unconstitutional. The firm sued the mayor, police chief, city attorney and members of the board of commissioners.

Attorneys for the magazine distributing company argued the law was overbroad and vague, violated the Equal Protection Clause of the 14th Amendment, created a prior restraint in violation of the First Amendment and deprived defendants of their Sixth Amendment right to a jury trial.

The court rejected all arguments, noting the material could be displayed behind "blinder racks" so the lower two-thirds of the material was not exposed to view.

"It is true that compliance with the ordinance will to some degree restrict the viewing by adults of materials which are, as to adults, constitutionally protected," the court said.

Miners lived the good life

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Artifacts from the Gold Rush days on display here for the first time indicate the Forty-Niners had a taste for expensive French champagne, truffles and petit saumons.

In fact, San Francisco was "a world-class, cosmopolitan city almost from day one," said James Delgado, historian for the Golden Gate National Recreational area.

That agency and others Wednesday opened a display of artifacts from Gold Rush-era ships, the first public showing since their discovery several years ago.

The artifacts were unearthed during construction of a downtown skyscraper. The ships had been abandoned by their crews and eventually buried under landfill.

"They do appear to be a hard-drinking bunch," Delgado said of the long-ago sailors. "They had brandies, whiskies, sherries and champagne aboard. They didn't drink rotgut."

Relics found in the Tennessee, a ship beached north of the Golden Gate Bridge in a cove now bearing its name, confirmed the popular image of Gold Rush miners as a happy-go-lucky bunch whose pockets jingled.

"They had rib steak, deer, mutton," Delgado said. "They ate well."

The items being shown — for an admission price of $5 — include empty French champagne bottles, broken dishes, parts of guns and the ships' logs. Delgado called the finds a "Gold Rush Pompeii."

Father shakes kids to death

SPOKANE (UPI) — Arnold Huggins, 22, Spokane, suspected of shaking his two infant children to death, has entered a plea of innocent to first degree manslaughter in one of the deaths.

Huggins entered the plea Wednesday before Judge Harold Clarke and was ordered held on $50,000 bond. Trial was set for Dec. 14.

Huggins is accused of violently shaking and bouncing his 3-week-old son, Brendell, on Nov. 1, 1982. The child died of an extensive acute hemorrhage in the brain.

Later, the same year, Charles, 4 months, died of the same type of injuries, according to police reports. No charges have been leveled in Charles' death.

Huggins reportedly admitted to police that he had shaken and bounced Charles before he died.

The father allegedly admitted to police that he had shaken Brendell and bounced him on his bed, but not on the day the infant died.

Panel studies WPPSS fall

SEATTLE (UPI) — Some of the principal players in the tough money game centered on the Washington Public Power Supply System were being briefed in Seattle Thursday on the recommendations of a special three-member panel.

One utility source said rather than new chips on the table, he expected to see a re-arrangement of ideas already put forth.

The three-member panel proposes to solve the problem of the supply system's default on $2.25 billion of bonds sold to finance the now-abandoned WPPSS plants 4 and 5 by placing a surcharge on all electricity generated in the Pacific Northwest.

The group, headed by longtime utility executive Charles Luce of Portland, Ore., also was reported to be recommending that responsibility for WPPSS plants 1, 2 and 3 be shifted to a federal or state entity.

Congress would have to authorize the regional surcharge and also the means to finance the completion of WPPSS 3, the 75-percent completed Satsop, Wash., plant that was mothballed last summer.

The four investor-owned utilities which own 30 percent of WPPSS 3 have expressed opposition to paying a surcharge on the electricity they generate unless they get something in return.

Auditors say agencies abusing funds

By BRUCE BOTKA
United Press International

BOISE — Legislative auditors said Thursday several Idaho agencies must keep better records when handling federal funds to prevent the possible loss of millions of dollars in grants.

Auditors told the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee that shoddy record-keeping was especially noticeable in the Office on Aging, which funnels federal money to regional and local agencies for programs to assist the elderly.

A total of 17 audits and informal financial reviews were presented during the daylong meeting at the Statehouse in Boise.

Most reports included relatively technical bookkeeping recommendations, but one critical audit outlined several specific abuses in the Agriculture Department.

The three-member panel proposes to solve the problem of the supply system's default on $2.25 billion of bonds sold to finance the now-abandoned WPPSS plants 4 and 5 by placing a surcharge on all electricity generated in the Pacific Northwest.

The group, headed by longtime utility executive Charles Luce of Portland, Ore., also was reported to be recommending that responsibility for WPPSS plants 1, 2 and 3 be shifted to a federal or state entity.

Congress would have to authorize the regional surcharge and also the means to finance the completion of WPPSS 3, the 75-percent completed Satop, Wash., plant that was mothballed last summer.

The four investor-owned utilities which own 30 percent of WPPSS 3 have expressed opposition to paying a surcharge on the electricity they generate unless they get something in return.

Arms talks go on but Soviet exodus likely

By REBECCA IRVIN
United Press International

GENEVA, Switzerland — American and Soviet negotiators discussed nuclear missile reduction in Europe for more than two hours Thursday and agreed to meet next week, but U.S. officials warned the talks could break off.

U.S. arms negotiators have detected what they see as a sure sign that Moscow is getting ready to break off nuclear weapons talks.

Soviet delegates have been spotted stocking up on goods, especially winter clothing, at a local department store.

Experience shows the Russians always do a lot of big shopping shortly before heading home, the U.S. negotiators said.

The U.S. negotiating position appeared to have suffered a setback with Italian Prime Minister Bettino Craxi's statement that 162 British and French missiles should be counted in the negotiations between NATO and the East Bloc.

France and Britain, two of Italy's NATO partners, insist the 162 missiles are not in the negotiations.

NATO member, does not belong to its integrated military command.

"I understand the position of the governments of London and Paris," Craxi said in an interview with the French newspaper Le Monde. "Nevertheless, I observe that those arms systems are not on the moon ... I consider that they should enter into specific calculations."

The Soviets have said the 162 missiles must be counted as part of the NATO arsenal. A position rejected by the United States.

Soviet and American negotiators met for two hours 15 minutes. A statement said another session would take place Wednesday.

"They're continuing," chief U.S. negotiator Paul Nitze said of the talks.

As Nitze arrived for talks with Soviet negotiator Yuri Kvitsinsky, some 15 demonstrators stood outside the Soviet mission waving banners and shouting "nukes, nyet" and "negotiate."

In private, U.S. officials said the talks would probably break down. The Soviets have warned repeatedly they would end negotiations "when the first missile arrives." The first cruise missiles were flown to Britain Monday.

NATO plans to deploy up to 572 cruise and Pershing-2 missiles in Europe starting next month unless Moscow agrees to reduce its arsenal of 680 intermediate-range missiles, including 230 SS-20s aimed at West Europe.

American delegates believe the Soviet Union will make a move after the West German Parliament debate Monday and Tuesday on the planned NATO deployment. German parliamentary approval of the NATO plan is almost certain.

The Soviets have made clear their worry about 108 Pershing-2 missiles scheduled to be deployed in West Germany, from where they could strike Soviet territory.

U.S. negotiators believe the Soviets may end the medium-range weapons talks without fixing a resumption date. They said the Soviets probably would resume negotiations next year.

Delegations to the parallel Strategic Arms Reduction Talks also met Thursday, for 2 1/2 hours and agreed to meet again next Tuesday.

Chief Soviet START negotiator Viktor Karpov said before the talks that "the American delegation is blocking all progress."

Catholic leader urges nuclear restraint

By ARTHUR HERMAN
United Press International

LONDON — The Roman Catholic primate in England argued against unilateral disarmament Thursday and warned anti-nuclear protesters not to break the law in their campaign against the delivery of U.S. cruise missiles.

Cardinal Basil Hume said in a 1,200-word policy statement that the West runs the risk of "nuclear blackmail" if it disarms unilaterally as many of Britain's increasingly active anti-nuclear protesters demand.

More than 500 demonstrators have been arrested in Britain since deliveries of U.S. cruise missiles began Monday.

Hume said everyone has a right to be against nuclear missiles, but "I would judge that this does not give us the right seriously to defy the law in the present situation."

"We must have due regard for democratic processes and for the institutions of a free society," said the Archbishop of Westminster, who is primate for England and Wales.

His statement, published in London's Times newspaper, contrasted sharply with the stance of Msgr. Bruce Kent, a Catholic priest who heads Britain's Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament.

Kent has announced a campaign of civil disobedience in order to block deployment of the cruise missiles.

Police Wednesday night arrested 70 demonstrators at Trafalgar Square in central London, bringing to more than 500 the number detained since a giant U.S. transport plane landed at the Greenham Common air base with Britain's first batch of cruise missiles.

Britain is to get 160 of the 572 medium-range missiles NATO plans to start deploying in Europe next month, unless a missile reduction agreement with the Soviet Union is reached in Geneva.

"Nothing could ever justify the use of nuclear arms as weapons of massive and indiscriminate slaughter," Hume said.

But he cautioned that reductions should come from both superpowers because unilateral disarmament by the West "may help to destabilize the existing situation, and may dramatically increase the risk of nuclear blackmail."

Hume's remark reassured statements by Pope John Paul II, who has said nuclear "deterrence based on balance ... as a state on the way towards a progressive disarmament can still be judged morally acceptable."

Police Thursday arrested four women at the Greenham Common air base 50 miles west of London, a police spokesman said.

Snipers fire on post, wound 2 Americans

By NICK MADIGAN
United Press International

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada — Snipers opened fire on a U.S. observation post on an island off the coast of Grenada Thursday, slightly wounding two soldiers — the first American casualties on the Caribbean island in nearly three weeks.

U.S. military spokesman Maj. Douglas Frey, meanwhile, told reporters local intelligence sources indicated between 12 and 30 Cuban holdouts were "still on the loose" in Grenada and efforts continued to capture them.

Frey said the latest shooting occurred on Green Island, just off Grenada's northeast coast, at about 2:20 a.m. EST.

One soldier was hit in the arm and the other in the leg, he said. The wounded man, part of a 10-to-15 man squad, were not identified.

Frey said the American troops searched the area around the small island, but failed to find the snipers.

have there been U.S. casualties reported.

U.S. military spokesmen Thursday updated the overall casualty figures as follows: 18 U.S. dead, 113 wounded; 25 Cuban dead, 57 wounded; 24 Grenadian civilians dead, 37 wounded; two Grenadian People's Revolutionary Army and militia dead; 19 presumed Grenadian dead.

It was the first time U.S. officials listed "presumed" Grenadian dead, and one official said the figure included 13 bodies originally presumed to be Cubans that were returned to Grenada Wednesday from Havana.

Employees of a funeral home in St. George's were trying Thursday to identify the remains before burying them.

The 13 were among 41 bodies sent to Cuba last Friday, U.S. officials initially said they had sent 42, while the Cubans said they only received 37. Only 24 turned out to be Cubans, officials in Havana said.

A nine-member White House task force, headed by Jay Morris, deputy administrator of the U.S. Agency for International Development, arrived in Grenada on a three-day fact-finding mission.

The task force is expected to make specific aid recommendations on its return to Washington. AID already has been allocated a total of $3 million for emergency rehabilitation projects in Grenada.

Andropov working, thanks newspaper

YURI ANDROPOV
Working despite illness

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet President Yuri Andropov thanked an American newspaper Thursday for an invitation to visit Iowa and the account of his response hinted he is working despite an illness that has kept him from public view.

The official Tass news agency account of his response to questions from the Des Moines Register said the Soviet government "will continue the utmost to lessen international tension, to improve relations between the U.S.S.R. and the United States."

But, it said, "to attain realistic progress in this important sphere, it is necessary to have good will and efforts of the other side — the government of the United States."

Andropov's response was given to Iowa banker John Crystal in a meeting with Mikhail Gorbachev, the Politburo member responsible for Soviet agriculture.

Tass said Gorbachev gave Crystal "the oral answer" of Andropov — indicating the Soviet leader was meeting with Politburo members in a normal fashion.

Thursday marked the 91st consecutive day that the Soviet leader has not appeared in public. Soviet officials have said Andropov has a common cold and earlier in the day, a Soviet official again said Andropov was suffering from a cold caught Oct. 29.

However, Western observers believe his illness is more serious. Andropov failed to appear at the Nov. 7 military parade, a political must, and other celebrations marking the 66th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

Andropov thanked Register editor James Gannon "for an invitation to visit Iowa printed in the newspaper Nov. 6 and hand-carried by Crystal, a banker from Coca Rapids who was in the Soviet Union on a business trip."

There was no indication that Andropov was considering accepting the offer.

"Andropov stressed that the Soviet Union has always been striving to live in peace with all the states, to develop mutually beneficial cooperation also with the United States, including such a creative sphere as agriculture," Tass said.

In that respect, "Andropov conveyed to the Des Moines Register editor and, through his newspaper, to the residents of the state of Iowa, all American farmers good wishes of success in their labor."

Greeks protest division

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI) — Thousands of Greek Cypriot workers stopped work for an hour Thursday to protest the self-proclaimed Turkish Cypriot state as Turkey agreed to hold talks on the future of the divided Mediterranean island.

In New York, U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar told the Security Council he would meet President Spyros Kyprianou and Rauf Denktaş, leader of the Turkish Cypriot state in northern Cyprus, to try to "weather the present crisis."

Civil servants, shopkeepers, factory workers and other salaried employees led the strike in towns and cities throughout the Greek Cypriot southern sector. Cyprus radio went off the air for the duration of the protest.

The situation was calm along the "green line," where some 2,600 U.N. troops remained on alert on the border between the Turkish-controlled northern sector and the Greek southern two-thirds of the island.

A U.N. spokesman said no incidents had been reported since Tuesday when Denktaş proclaimed the independence of the northern sector of the island occupied by nearly 20,000 troops from Turkey, 50 miles to the north.

In Ankara, Foreign Ministry spokesman Nazmi Akman said Turkey would accept a British government proposal for talks with Britain and Greece "to discuss the Cyprus 'disimpasse' as guarantor countries."

Britain, the former colonial power in Cyprus and co-guarantor of a united Cyprus republic with Greece and Turkey, has condemned the Turkish Cypriot action.

Cyprus split consumes U.N.

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Greek and Turkish Cypriot leaders traded accusations Thursday over the establishment of an independent Turkish-Cypriot republic in Cyprus, charging each other with dividing the eastern Mediterranean island.

U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar told the Security Council he would meet with the Cypriot officials in an attempt "to weather the present crisis."

Rauf Denktaş, president of the newly created republic in the north of the island, charged the crisis began with the 1963 expulsion of Turkish Cypriots from the Cyprus government and not with the declaration of the new state.

"The Greek-Cypriots sought to create a Hellenistic paradise, but a paradise in which Turkish birds were not allowed to sing," he told the Council.

Denktaş, looking directly across the horseshoe-shaped Council table at Perez de Cuellar, appealed to him to reopen talks with both communities.

"Give Cyprus a chance to establish a bi-zonal federalism," he said.

The council was debating a British-sponsored draft resolution that "deplores the declaration of the Turkish-Cypriot authorities of the purpose of 'secession' and calls for the creation of the Turkish Republic of Northern Cyprus 'invalid.'"

It called on all countries "not to recognize any Cypriot state other than the Republic of Cyprus." Most countries have not recognized the new state.

who assassinated Tsantes and his Greek driver in an attack claimed by the organization known as the 17th of November, same left-wing terrorist group that killed Welsh in Athens eight years ago.

Police said no suspects had been arrested in the highway murders Tuesday of Tsantes, 33, chief of the naval mission of the Joint U.S. Military Aid Group in Greece, and his driver, Nikos Veloutsos, 62.

U.S. Embassy sources said Tsantes' body would be transported by military aircraft to Dover, Del., tonight after a memorial service at an American military base in Athens.

Gun linked in assassinations

ATHENS, Greece (UPI) — Police announced Thursday U.S. Navy Capt. George Tsantes was shot and killed with the same .45 pistol used to assassinate CIA station chief Richard Welch eight years ago, a police spokesman said.

The spokesman said the connection was established by examining the bullets which killed Tsantes and his chauffeur Tuesday. They said they were fired by the same pistol as the one that killed Welch.

Police also said the cartridges used in the murder of Tsantes were manufactured in 1969 in Greece.

Greek police hunted for two gunmen

Israelis promise to avenge attacks

By MEL LAYTNER
United Press International

JERUSALEM — Israel warned guerrilla groups in Lebanon Thursday they cannot escape retribution for terrorist acts and vowed to stage new search and destroy air strikes against their bases behind Syrian lines.

"As we made clear, those terrorist organizations which will perpetrate those monstrous terrorist activities against us will not enjoy immunity," said Deputy Foreign Minister Yehuda Ben-Meir.

"We will search for them wherever they are and strike at them."

Ben-Meir said the suicide bomb attacks against the U.S. Marines and French and Israeli forces in Lebanon were launched from the bases Israeli warjets destroyed Wednesday.

"Yesterday we struck a good blow against those murderers who were the ones responsible for ... the killing of our people in Tyre as well as those responsible for the terrorist action against the United States Marines and the French in Beirut," he said.

Israeli warjets Wednesday swooped into Lebanon's Bekaa Valley and destroyed two bases of the pro-Iranian Islamic Amal militia 10 miles southwest of Baalbek.

Reports said about 30 people were killed and 80 were wounded in the 30-minute strike, which destroyed buildings, ammunition depots, trucks and anti-aircraft guns.

Western intelligence sources privately blamed the group for the Oct. 23 bombings that killed 239 U.S. servicemen and 58 French paratroops in Beirut and the Nov. 4 bombing at the Israeli headquarters in Tyre that killed 29 Israelis and 32 Arabs.

Ben-Meir's warning of retaliatory strikes against the guerrilla groups based behind Syrian lines represents a return to past policy.

Despite numerous attacks on its forces in Lebanon, Israel had refrained from retaliating with its air force for more than six months — a policy abruptly dropped after the Tyre attack.

Ben-Meir spoke after meeting with special U.S. Middle East envoy Donald Rumsfeld. The Israeli official said he and Rumsfeld discussed a wide variety of issues — but not the air attack.

Ben-Meir said the raid "was an Israeli action, taken by Israel on her own."

Another senior official said Israel was not surprised at the muted Western reaction to the air raid.

"We feel there was an understanding to hit back at those fanatics responsible," the official said. "It is only natural there was no condemnation. This is a very dangerous organization and the more it is weakened the better off we are."

Arafat injured, promises to 'fight to the end'

TRIPOLI, Lebanon (UPI) — Yasser Arafat, his hand bloody and bandaged, vowed Thursday "to fight to the end" despite the fall of his last stronghold to Palestinian rebels who looted his rocket and mortar barges near Tripoli.

Arafat, who has toured the front lines of his 5,000 fighters within the northern port city, refused to say if his hand was injured in combat. "Don't worry," he said. "It's still working."

The beleaguered PLO chief admitted he lost most of the nearby refugee camp of Baddawi Wednesday, but said 600 Arafat loyalists launched a counter-attack within the fallen camp in a desperate bid to rejoin their comrades who retreated to Tripoli earlier this week.

Official Beirut radio said, however, the intense mortar and rocket fire forced the 600 troops out of Baddawi and south into the Malatya coastal district of Tripoli, with the rebels advancing to take territory nearer the city.

On the southern outskirts of Baddawi, mortar shells and rocket-propelled grenades crashed on buildings topped with deafening thuds that lifted huge clouds of smoke.

Arafat's forces trapped to the south of Baddawi fought back with small arms while their comrades in the port of Tripoli fired rockets from Soviet-made Stalins launchers.

State-run radio in Damascus said Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam met with Saudi, Qatari and Kuwaiti officials seeking to mediate a cease-fire before fighting engulfs Tripoli's populated neighborhoods.

There were no confirmed casualty figures for the latest round of fighting but Lebanese security sources said more than 345 Palestinians and civilians were killed and 865 wounded in the two-day assault that led to the fall of Baddawi.

"The camp has militarily fallen to the rebels but we will continue to fight to the end. We have no other choice," Arafat said.

The rebels issued a new call for Arafat's surrender, and they indicated they would halt their drive before entering Tripoli's streets, which would likely lead to heavy casualties in the city of 150,000.

"The battle with Arafat is finished and so is Arafat," said Ahmed Jibril, leader of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command, one of the leaders of a six-month guerrilla rebellion against Arafat.

"His only alternative is to surrender and face punishment."

Arafat "was cornered in north Lebanon two months ago, first losing the Nahr El Barod refugee camp.

U.S. contacted before French raid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States received advance notice of the French air attack on pro-Iranian guerrilla bases in Lebanon Thursday, the State Department said.

An administration official said a U.S. retaliatory strike for the Oct. 23 killing of 229 Marines in a Beirut truck bombing is still possible.

Israeli planes attacked suspected terrorist camps behind Syrian lines in Lebanon's Bekaa Valley Wednesday without consulting the United States, the State Department said.

State Department spokesman John Hughes said the United States was informed in advance, however, by the French of their intention to raid two guerrilla camps in Baalbek, 42 miles east of Beirut.

"It was a French decision," he said. An administration official said if intelligence shows the suspected terrorists targeted by the Israeli and French raids were not wiped out it would be "a correct logical assumption" that U.S. strikes could be ordered to protect American Marines from further attacks.

"But that is a big if," he added. The administration official spoke on the condition of no further identification.

The French attack was in retaliation for the deaths of 58 French members of the multinational peace-keeping force in Beirut in a terrorist bombing that coincided with the attack against U.S. Marine headquarters.

The Israeli raid Wednesday that killed 30 and wounded 80 was a response to the Nov. 4 terrorist bombing at an Israeli installation in Tyre, Lebanon, that killed 29 Israelis and 32 Arabs.

The pro-Iranian Islamic Amal militia is the suspected group behind all three attacks.

The United States has conducted aerial reconnaissance over the area near the Syrian border where the guerrillas are headquartered.

On Oct. 27, President Reagan told a nationwide broadcast audience, "Those who directed this atrocity (against the U.S. Marines in Beirut) must be dealt justly. They will be." National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane said later the invasion of Grenada should serve as a warning that U.S. interests cannot be attacked with impunity.

Asked Thursday if the French and Israeli raids satisfied the U.S. promise of retaliation, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said, "We're not discussing diplomatic discussions."

Grenada veterans in Beirut

GREEN BEACH, Beirut (UPI) — Fresh from victory in Grenada, a new Marine force arrived in Beirut Thursday for a tour of duty as peacekeepers, replacing the 24th Marine Amphibious Brigade which lost 239 members to a terrorist bombing.

"They're going to have to walk softly here," said Lt. Mark Singleton, of Conway, S.C., leaving after six months duty. "It's a totally different situation in Grenada. There they were an invasion force. Here, they are going to be a lot more limited."

Artillery duels in the Shout mountains echoed over the beach and the adjacent Marine base at Beirut Airport as the advance parties of the new Marine unit rolled ashore with four M-60 tanks and 155 mm howitzers.

The first group of the new unit prepared for the main landing of 1,800 troops of the 22nd Marine Amphibious Unit. The change in force was expected to be completed by Monday.

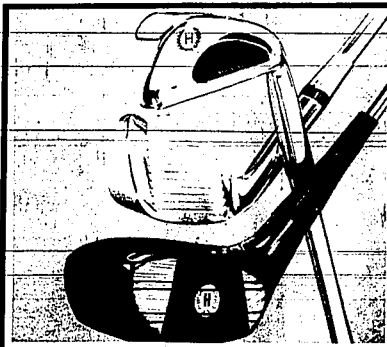

The new unit was on its way to relieve the Marines in Beirut, but was diverted while at sea and sent to the Caribbean island of Grenada to overthrow a Cuban-backed Marxist regime that toppled the nation's leftist leader.

Rains cause rash of car wrecks, one death

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Heavy rain was credited by officers as contributing to a rash of traffic accidents Thursday, including the death of a young Wendell driver.

A 19-year-old Wendell man died of injuries late Thursday after his car went out of control on a curve just south of the Ferris Bridge and swerved into the path of another vehicle. Twin Falls County Coroner Cloyd Edwards identified the victim as Mitchell Dean Swanson. He said the young man died of multiple internal injuries.

The accident, which occurred about 2:30 p.m., sent four persons to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center in Twin Falls.

Cpl. Lamont Johnston of the Idaho State Police said the Wendell man was southbound on U.S. Highway 93. His vehicle went out of control on the rain-slick highway and skidded into the path of a northbound vehicle driven by Carolyn Sullivan, 26, of Jerome.

The officer said the Sullivan vehicle hit Swanson's sports car broadside near the driver's door and the impact threw the driver into the back seat.

Sullivan and her two children, Melissa, 4, and Sara, 1, were taken by ambulance to the hospital where the two children were treated and released. Sullivan suffered a possible fractured leg, but was not critically injured.

Swanson was alone in his vehicle. Johnston said he was not sure of the speed involved, but said the Wendell driver was apparently traveling too fast for conditions at the time of the accident.

Officers from the Jerome and Twin Falls sheriff's departments and Twin Falls city police assisted at the scene. Traffic was blocked for more than an hour by the collision.

One Twin Falls city officer said the Swanson vehicle had just passed a pickup truck and began hydroplaning as it hit water in the center lane of the highway, probably causing the accident.

Other motorists at the scene attempted to assist the injured and hold up traffic at the scene while awaiting arrival of an ambulance and police officers.

Most of the other accidents were minor with no serious injuries. Drivers in an accident on I-84 about 15 miles west of Jerome, at almost the same time as the Twin Falls accident, both escaped injury.

Gooding County Deputy Sheriff Dale Bunn reported a truck clipped the rear corner of a sedan and both left the highway, going into the median. He said at first it was believed the drivers were injured.

Another minor accident was reported on I-84 near the rest area just east of U.S. 93 in Jerome County. State police said one vehicle was involved, but there were no injuries.

Conditions were expected to worsen during the night and officers were warning motorists to check conditions before traveling.

State officers said it was snowing heavily at 8 p.m. between Idaho and Utah, in the area of Switzer Summit.

Dispatcher George Blackburn said rain was beginning to turn to snow in most Magic Valley areas.

Rain was reported in the vicinity of the Nevada-Idaho state line and other Magic Valley areas throughout the day.

An occasional flooded basement—and numerous flooded intersections were reported in Twin Falls Thursday night. However, officers said they had no serious problems reported.

At the Pomerelle Ski Resort south of Burley, an estimated 10 inches of new snow fell during the day. Sandy Anderson, co-owner of the resort, said runs were being packed in anticipation of an opening by Thanksgiving and possibly early in the week.

She said snow plows cleared the road and parking lots early in the afternoon, but by 8 p.m. it was impossible to tell the snow had been plowed.

Soldier Mountain, near Fairfield, had snow continuing during the day with plans to open on Thanksgiving day.

In Blaine County, sheriff's officers said the weather was holding there with no snow or rain having fallen as of 9 p.m. Thursday.

Clive and Ella Gooding still live in the English birthplace of Gooding's founder, former Idaho governor Frank Gooding

Britains hunt for heritage in Gooding

By JANENE BUCKWAY
Times-News writer

GOODING — A search for their heritage has brought Clive and Ella Gooding from England to Gooding, Idaho.

While their roots are firmly grounded in the British Isles and they speak of their homeland as "a bit of paradise," the couple are spending their honeymoon visiting the American town that bears their family name, and at the same time learning more about its founder.

The couple were married Oct. 29 near Tiverton in Devonshire, England, and live on a 65-acre farm on the outskirts of a small village of 500 people. Tiverton used to be known as Trevorton and was the birthplace of Frank R. Gooding, former Idaho Governor, U.S. Senator and founder of Gooding.

Clive and his new bride both have Goodings on their family trees, but they say they are not aware of a connection between their families and Idaho's Goodings. However, he says the name is fairly uncommon and they are going to continue their search for a connection to the American branch that they say is "likely."

Seven years ago, Clive learned of the American town named Gooding.

"There was a letter in our local press asking people named Gooding to write to someone in Gooding, Idaho," he explains.

Clive did not respond at that time and cannot remember who wrote the letter, but he never forgot about the town with his name.

After he and Ella decided to marry, he asked her if she would like to "go to Gooding." She replied in true British fashion "what a smashing idea!"

"They call being in Gooding 'The dream of a lifetime,'" Ella explains with much good humor, that they had difficulty locating Gooding on a map and, learning much about the town.

"We knew it was in Idaho near the Snake River," Clive adds.

When they applied for their passports, they were still not sure where the town was, but learned it was "likely."

With the help of the American Embassy in London, they got an address for Mayor J.E. Heller at City Hall in Gooding and wrote him a letter telling of their desire to visit the town and learn about its Goodings.

"Thursday before the wedding, Clive came running in telling me we had received 'the best wedding present ever,'" Ella recalls. It was a letter from Mayor Heller welcoming their visit and providing the information they had requested.

The couple arrived in Gooding Sunday, after visiting Northern California and Oregon by car. Heller says he has introduced them to the members of the Gooding family in Gooding and Twin Falls. And the English Goodings exclaim they have had a "lovely time" meeting, quite possibly, their American cousins.

Asked what they think of America, "It's vast!" they chorus and describe their first glimpse of a California freeway "in a car with the steering wheel on the wrong side," the California redwoods, the Columbia River, Idaho's Sawtooth Mountains, the Snake River Plain and the Snake River Canyon.

"It's like another world to us," they say.

"Everything is so extreme," Ella says thoughtfully. "The size of the mountains, the depth of the canyon and even the amount of food served in restaurants." She expressed amazement at driving 35 miles just to go to dinner.

"We'd never do that at home."

She says the mountains took some getting used to and she is still intimidated by them. The floor of the building creaked during this interview and she asked about earthquakes, like the one this area experienced Oct. 26.

But she describes American people as friendly and willing to help.

"We're so odd they recognize us as a mile off," she quips in her familiar English accent, but says their stay has been simply "lovely."

Though they don't quite understand why people would want to settle in a desert area where water is more precious than gold and "you have to struggle so, just to get things to grow," they are developing a respect for the people who built a town, from scratch, out of sagebrush and lava rocks. The 75-year-old southern Idaho town is younger than the 100-year-old "modern home" they own in Devonshire.

They also express an appreciation of the openness of the land and its people, the clean air and water and the "American way" of serving breakfast in a single course.

In England, Clive farms and is an excavation contractor. He says he enjoys motor bike racing, the seaside, trout fishing and pheasant hunting.

He says the cost of living seems to be lower in Idaho than England. "Your petrol is really reasonable."

Clive received the First National Conservation Award in England last year for restoring the 17th century corn mill and mill ponds on his farm.

The contest, sponsored by Ford Motor Company, recognizes efforts to conserve resources and heritage.

For his project, Clive located a "new" water hole, built in 1887, dismantled it and took it to his farm where he repaired it and used it to replace the original one on his mill.

The couple have purchased cowboy boots, belts and buckles and hope to get some Indian crafts before they leave early next week.

Property tax change posed

Panels study college tax bases

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls and Jerome County residents will pay lower property taxes if recommendations by two state task forces on education are accepted, says College of Education for the 1984-85 school year.

Meyerhoeffer said that already receive property tax dollars.

Another recommendation — made by both the Higher Education Task Force and the Governor's Education Task Force on Education for the 1984-85 school year — is to raise faculty salaries in Idaho to the average amount paid by surrounding states.

Meyerhoeffer says the move is overdue. Salaries at CSI were not raised this year because the college has been receiving less state funds, he says.

"They (the faculty) have been very understanding and realized we had to freeze salaries while what is happening at the state level. But if I can't remunerate them this year, I will lose key people," the college president says.

Some of the money for increased salaries would come from new tuition charges at four-year colleges, according to the two plans. While tuition is already charged at CSI, it would be increased, Meyerhoeffer says.

According to the higher education plan, four-year colleges should be allowed to charge tuition for up to a third of the cost of student education.

Tuition at CSI this semester is set at $150 a semester — far below a third of the approximately $2,000 it costs to educate each student for a semester.

Meyerhoeffer says if tuition is approved for four-year colleges, the community college tuition would most likely be raised to match.

are acting as community colleges as well as statewide universities, says Meyerhoeffer. "Yet, their area counties do not support them with property taxes."

Meyerhoeffer says making all counties in the state contribute to the community college system will be fairer to colleges like CSI that already receive property tax dollars.

Hopefuls under review for principal position

TWIN FALLS — Andy Barron, Clive and Ella Gooding, and Norman Wiseman are being considered to become the new O'Leary Junior High School principal.

The hiring committee for the position interviewed the three men Thursday. After meeting with Superintendent Gary Piller, the committee is expected to recommend one of the men for the position at the Dec. 13 board meeting.

Barron now teaches social studies at Twin Falls High School. He also coaches boys' varsity football and wrestling.

Philips is also a coach, instructing the boys' basketball and track teams at O'Leary Junior High. He teaches health and is head of the physical education department.

Wiseman was the vice-principal at O'Leary Junior High until he became athletic director at Twin Falls High School in 1977.

All the men are certified to be principals, committee chairman Carl Snow says. Snow is now principal of O'Leary Junior High, but has accepted a position with the district as assistant superintendent.

Between Snow's December resignation and the time a new principal is named, Gordon Armstrong will act as principal.

Hailey planner hired to aid land-use studies

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

HAILEY — The city of Hailey has hired a planner to help in land-use matters and to save the city some money by doing some work now done by the city attorney and engineer.

Mara Ann Ward, 29, was appointed this week by the Hailey City Council to fill the 32-hour-a-week position.

Mayor Wordell Rainey says the new planner will work directly with the city's planning and zoning commission and with the council on land-use matters.

She will help rewrite the city's zoning ordinance to meet the requirements of the comprehensive plan that was revised last year and will prepare elected and appointed officials and the public for land-use matters brought before the city.

Rainey says Ward also will take over some of the research work that has been forced upon the city attorney or engineer, explaining that her work in these areas should be less costly.

"We expect she will save us some money," Rainey says.

Ward says she will fill a research role for the city, providing city officials with information and options for land-use problems they face. She says her role will be objective.

Ward has a master's degree in environmental sciences from the State University of New York in Syracuse. She also holds a bachelor's degree in geology.

She served as a staff person for the Conservation and Recreation Committee of the New York State Legislature the past three years and worked as a geologist for the Shoshone District Bureau of Land Management in 1978-79. In the summer of 1980, she worked as a range fire fighter with the same BLM office.

Open-pit mine proposed near Stanley

By HAL BERNTSON
Times-News writer

STANLEY — A Canadian oil company subsidiary will study the environmental impact of developing an open-pit gold mine 19 miles northeast of Stanley in the Yankee Fork area.

The mine, which would employ between 60 and 100 people, was first proposed in 1980 by the Stanley-based Sunbeam Mining Co., a subsidiary of Goldstone Resources of Vancouver, Canada.

The mine would be located at the site of the abandoned Sunbeam Mine. It would be located underground in an area that already contains several active underground silver and gold mines.

"The site is in a highly disturbed area with a lot of roads in it," said Don Murray, a Challis Forest Service official.

A planning document, known as an environmental assessment, has been completed on the proposed mine, he said.

Mine officials, however, have decided that a more complete study is necessary to answer all environmental concerns that would be raised by the mine's development.

The original planning document contained two controversial proposals, Murray said.

The first involves a plan to use a marshy area known as Pinon Basin as a waste storage facility. The second involves the use of an outdoor, cyanide leaching process to extract the gold at a mill located beside the pit.

This process was viewed by some Forest Service officials as a threat to water quality.

In a newly revised mine development plan, the outdoor leaching process will be replaced by an indoor leaching process carried out in large vats. The indoor process will also use lower concentrations of cyanide, Murray said.

The mill will produce a semi-refined bullion which will then be shipped to another mill for further refining.

James L. Hora, project engineer for Sunbeam Mining Co., said the mine will be a "medium-sized producer."

He said the company is still uncertain about how many acres it would occupy.

Development of the mine, however,

BLM seeks input on proposal

ELKO — The federal Bureau of Land Management is asking for public comments on the issues and objectives that should be included in a resource management plan now being developed for the Elko District.

The plan will guide the use of BLM lands in Elko, Lander and Elmore counties for the next 20 years.

Major issues include wilderness suitability recommendations, levels of vegetation use by wildlife, livestock and wild horses and land tenure adjustments.

Written comments should be sent to the Elko RMP Team Leader at the BLM district office in Elko Nevada, 89601 by Dec. 12.

House bill favors Boy Scouts

WASHINGTON — The House Agriculture Committee has approved an amendment that would allow the Secretary of Agriculture to waive all or part of rental fees charged to Boy Scouts and other non-profit groups for the use of Forest Service lands.

The bill, introduced by Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, would require the non-profit groups to perform valuable services on National Forest lands in return for the fee waiver.

The bill would help reduce costs of Boy Scout and church groups that currently lease Forest Service lands in the South Hills for summer camps, says Hansen.

South Hills road closures set

TWIN FALLS — The 14-mile stretch of road between the junction of the south fork of Shoshone Creek and the Oakley-Rogerson Road and Lawrence Road in the South Hills has been closed to motor vehicle travel until next summer.

"This road is being closed to prevent damage to the travel surface," said Dave McMillmonds, a Sawtooth Forest Service official. "Because it does not have a rock surface, it is susceptible to erosion and damage, especially during and after rain storms."

Once the road is covered with snow, it will be open to use by snowmachines only, McMillmonds said.

New BLM district chief named

BURLEY — John Davis, a Boise-based federal Bureau of Land Management official, has been selected to replace retiring Nick James Czakos as manager of the Burley District.

Davis, a native of Lakota, Kansas, now works as the chief of planning and environmental coordination at the state BLM office in Boise.

Davis started his BLM career as a forester in Missoula in 1957. He served in BLM headquarters in Washington D.C. as a natural resource policy analyst from 1968 to 1978. Then he transferred to the BLM Boise office.

"I have enjoyed serving the Bureau in my capacity as a chief here in the state office," says Davis. "but I am really looking forward to getting back into the field and assuming some line management responsibilities."

Sawtooths receive $2.5 million

WASHINGTON — A bill recently signed into law by President Reagan will provide an additional $2.5 million in funds to help the Sawtooth National Recreation Area buy scenic easement rights.

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, says that the money is needed to complete scenic easement payments required to preserve some viewpoints in the Sawtooth NRA.

In recent years, federal funding of the scenic easement programs has been sporadic, at best, McClure said in a press release.

"As a result, landowners in the Sawtooth NRA have been shortchanged, and its time they receive the payments owed to them on time," McClure said.

The scenic easements are bought by the Forest Service to preserve the pristine quality of certain areas. Under the plan, landowners receive monetary compensation in exchange for agreeing not to further develop their land.

Since the establishment of the Sawtooth NRA in 1972, the Forest Service has negotiated with 45 landowners in the 754,000-square-acre area to provide scenic easements.

Man bound over in theft case

TWIN FALLS — A 57-year-old Twin Falls man was bound over to Fifth District Court Thursday on theft charges following a preliminary hearing.

Magistrate Charles Brumback ordered G. Callen held for district court on charges of "grand theft by false representation."

The complaint against Callen alleges he charged items at Vickers' Saddle Shop in Twin Falls to the Callen "Ranch" in southern Twin Falls County. His father, Charles Brumback, said the ranch, declined to pay the bill saying G. Callen did not have authority to charge the merchandise.

Callen Church in Twin Falls where she was active in Em-Join Club and the Unity Club.

She was a member of the Twentieth Century Club and the Idaho Travelers. She was also a member of and served on the board for the YWCA.

Surviving include: two sons, Ferris I. Sweet of Twin Falls and Darrell P. Sweet of Idaho Falls; a brother, O. T. Truesdell of Burley, Calif.; a sister, Jeanette Gardner of Twin Falls; seven grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by her husband in 1954, three brothers and two sisters.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Monday at Reynolds & Funerals, 1000 W. Main St., with Rev. Warren Chapman and Rev. Vaughn Sweet officiating. Burial will be at Sunset Memorial Park in Twin Falls.

Friends may call Reynolds Funeral Chapel on Sunday and Monday until the time of the service.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the First Christian Church building fund or a favorite charity.

Iva A. Sullivan
OAKLEY — Iva A. Sullivan, 82, of Oakley, died Tuesday evening at the Minidoka Memorial Hospital.

Born June 21, 1895, in Oakley, she married John Logan Sullivan on July 27, 1918 in Twin Falls.

He died April 1, 1958. She was a member of the Mormon Church and was active in the Primary and Relief Society.

Surviving include: six sons, Grant I. Sullivan and William W. Sullivan, both of Oakley; James K. Sullivan of Kimberly; Hal E. Sullivan of Waco, Texas; John S. Sullivan of Encinitas, Calif.; and Charles Gary Sullivan of Lexington, S.C.; a daughter, Frances J. Lippitt of Milwaukee, Ore.; three nieces, Barbara Winn of Oakley, Ruth Jensen of Salt Lake City, Utah, and Sue Post of Tucson, Ariz.; 19 grandchildren; 10 great-grandchildren and 1 great-great-grandchild.

The funeral will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday in the Oakley LDS Stake Center with Bishop Mark Lloyd officiating. Interment will follow in the Oakley Cemetery.

Friends may call at McCulloch's Funeral Chapel from 2 to 8:30 p.m. today and Saturday at the church one hour prior to the service.

Jerome city park and pool finally get official name

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — For many years, the park area around the city swimming pool and children's play area just northwest of the main city park in Jerome has never had a name.

"It has been called such things as 'kiddies' park," "the pool" or whatever other term came to mind.

But that situation has now been remedied. The Jerome City Council, at the Russell E. Shepherd Park during a recent meeting.

A resolution adopting the park name noted the name honors an outstanding Jerome citizen who saved the early-day bankrupt northside tract and town, donated property for cultural uses and served the community in many capacities.

A history of Shepherd, who came to the area in 1913, was read before the resolution was introduced.

Virginia Ricketts prepared the history, noting Shepherd came to the tract and found an inadequate and poorly designed irrigation system that left much of the designated farmland with insufficient water for crops.

She said Shepherd met with land owners, won their confidence and believed in the promise of the agricultural tract. He worked with eastern bankers to refinance the north side development, Ricketts said, and then assisted in getting a new system into operation.

Shepherd served as the first president of the American Falls Reservoir District, was active in getting American Falls Dam built, and headed the North Side Canal Co. as president from 1918 until retiring in 1941.

He was also Idaho's representative to the National Reclamation Association and served in many community positions.

His home, an impressive two-story structure, was located where St. Benedict's Hospital now stands. It was moved one block north, where it now stands, to make room for the hospital construction.

A park just north of the hospital, formerly located behind his home and made available to the public, is still serving area residents and visitors.

Residents facing rate hike

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

HAGERMAN — City residents in Hagerman may soon be charged new water rates — and odds are great that the rates will be higher and not lower.

At the Monday Hagerman City Council meeting, board members discussed the ill-fated sewer system, which has proven to be a financial nightmare for the city.

Since the problem is complicated, the council decided to hold a workshop at City Hall on Monday, Nov. 28, at 7 p.m.

Although no one has said rates will definitely be raised, that appears to be a probability.

In other business: The council canvassed election votes and confirmed Merle Owsley as mayor-elect and Audrey Hoffmann and Gloria Jazwick as elected council members.

Owsley will replace Karen Yarbrough and will appoint a new council member to fill his council seat. Council members Mark Bulduc and Dave Beutler did not attend election.

City Clerk Lee Graham noted that a public hearing to approve the planning and zoning comprehensive plan will be held at the Senior Citizens Center Tuesday at 7 p.m.

Since the Enterprise of Southern Idaho ceased publication this month, the council approved the Gooding County Leader as the city's new legal publication.

Couple sentenced on drug charges

JEROME — A Jerome couple, arrested when police found 49 large marijuana plants growing in the attic of their home, went before Fifth District Judge Phillip Becker Tuesday for sentencing.

Mark Rundle, 28, was sentenced to five years under jurisdiction of the Idaho Board of Corrections. The indeterminate sentence ordered by Judge Becker makes it possible for the state board to determine the period Rundle will actually serve in the state prison.

He entered a plea of guilty to manufacture of a controlled substance and two other counts, including possession and delivery, were dropped. Police in Jerome said the man also faces charges in Cassia County.

His wife, Debbie Rundle, 28, was given a five-year sentence, which was then suspended by the court in favor of a three-year probation. Terms of the probation stipulated by Becker are that she enter a rehabilitation center for treatment of drug addiction within 60 days and then complete the 28-day program at the Port of Hope in Twin Falls.

The judge also required frequent reports to her probation officer and drug counselor. He said her home, person and property must be open to search by probation officers at any time.

She also pleaded guilty to manufacture of a controlled substance and possession of cocaine. The couple have two small children and terms of her probation will allow her to care for the children.

Becker told her he wanted it clear that if she fails terms of the probation she will have to serve the state prison sentence.

Eden ponders cablevision franchise for city

EDEN — The Eden City Council has decided to pursue possibilities of a cablevision franchise for the city.

The council agreed during a recent meeting to contact Custom Cable Systems of Denver, Colo. to find out if the firm is still willing to establish a cable system in the city.

City Clerk Edith Utz said the firm contacted Eden officials last summer to propose bringing the service to the city, but no word has been received back on whether or not the firm is still interested in a franchise. There is presently no cable service in the Eden area.

Eden officials are also preparing to organize a crime-watch program in the city. A representative from the Twin Falls Police Department will meet with Eden officials to explain the program in January.

In other business: Council members agreed the city will have to install a 15-inch pipe behind the town's water tank and pump house to enclose an open irrigation ditch.

The health department has recommended the line be installed near the pump house and the city will extend the covered pipe to include the ditch at the end of the water tank. Work will begin as soon as irrigation water is shut off for the season.

A canvass of the Nov. 8 city election confirmed that Mayor Owen Hammond and Councilman Larry Craig were re-elected.

Petitions filed to dissolve recreation panel

GOODING — Petitions to dissolve the newly formed Gooding Recreation District have been filed.

Gooding County Clerk Margaret Clements said Monday the group opposing the district have collected enough eligible signatures to call for a new election.

Clements said she had checked and verified the signatures and "will notify them this week that the petitions are complete."

She explained the group will have 10 days after receiving the written notice of the adequate petitions to pay the cost of the election.

Once the money is paid, the county commission will have 30 days to set the date of an election and then the election must be advertised for three weeks, she added.

"They have plenty of signatures, but if they do not pay the money in the 10 days there will be no election," she said.

guards, 6-foot-9 Silvio Alvarez, a shot-blocking intimidator inside, and 6-7 Paulo Teles de Almeida, reputedly the top shooter, at forwards; and 6-7 Marcos Leite at center. Three of those have represented Brazil in the Olympics.

"They came to this country to play six games but they've been picking more up along the way," Trenkle said. "I've talked to the coaches at Montana and Montana State and know this team could walk off with the Big Sky Conference. Brazil just beat Montana by two in the final couple of seconds but the Montana coach said he felt his team had played very well."

Concerning the performance of Townsend, Trenkle said "they start the five Brazilians and bring in Ray for his 25 points during the game."

"Everyone tells me they are physical, great shooters and a super passing team. They've played 60 or 70 games already this year and they're coming here in peak shape. That they'll be playing their seventh or eighth straight night won't be a lot of help to us because they used to playing every day and traveling. Sometimes they play two games a day," Trenkle said with a smile.

"We're just going to go out, do our thing and learn," he continued. "Our lack of experience is the thing that will hurt us, especially against a mature and knowledgeable team like this."

"I feel good about this team has a whole," said Trenkle. "It's such a young team it can only get better. I think from a standpoint of using the first few games as a gauge for judging the rest of the season, though, the Casper tournament will be a better barometer. We'll be looking at team wins on our own experience frame."

"I like the options we have with this group," he said. "We can go with a big lineup — of course we don't have the big man — or a smaller one. I think that showed in our last two scrimmages (against BNC and Mountain Home A State)." Trenkle said.

"Our big lineup worked very well against BNC and our quickness made a big difference against Mountain Home."

"Academically it's a pretty decent team with 12 of 14 getting pretty good grades," he continued. "Only two out of the bunch weren't predators so we're not surprised by that."

"The biggest disappointment is the overall lack of intensity," Trenkle said. "I think they could hold it for a few minutes, but that isn't enough against a good team. I can't imagine guys laughing and giggling before games or at halftime and telling me they're intent on the game."

"But I know I saw definite improvement along those lines against BNC and Mountain Home."

Still to come, the coach said, is installing the full intent of his defense. "We don't have our half court and three-quarter pressure defenses in and we have to firm up in these players' minds what a man defense is," he said.

Trenkle said he will wait to decide on what his starting lineup will be. "I have seven or eight players that could get the nod," he said. "It all depends on what we think we see on the Brazil team."

Lakers run record to 8-2 with win over Cavs

By United Press International

Magic Johnson collected a career-high 22 assists and scored 23 points Thursday night to pace the Los Angeles Lakers to a 127-114 victory over Cleveland Cavaliers.

Johnson, the NBA leader with an average of 14.1 assists per game, exceeded by one his career best set last season. The 6-foot-6 guard also had 9 rebounds and hit 8-of-13 shots from the field.

The NBA record for most assists in a game is 29, set by Kevin Porter of New Jersey in 1978.

The victory was the sixth in a row for the Angeles and completed a sweep of its five-game homestand. The triumph moved the Lakers into first place in the Pacific Division, a half-game ahead of Portland. Their 8-2 record is the best in the NBA.

The loss was the ninth in 11 games and fifth in a row for Cleveland. The Cavaliers have yet to win on the road this season, losing seven times.

Jamaal Wilkes led the Lakers in scoring with 24 points, and Mike McGee and Michael Cooper benefited the most from Johnson's passes with Cooper scoring 18 points and McGee 13. Cliff Robinson led Cleveland with 28 points. World B. Free added 21 and reserve Phil Hubbard contributed 18, including 12 in the final period.

Johnson and Free put on a sensational performance in the third period when the Lakers outscored Cleveland 34-30 to take a 92-88 lead. Johnson had 12 points and 8 assists in the 12 minutes and Free struck for 20 points in the period, hitting 8-of-9 from the field and 4-of-5 free throws. Free did not score a field goal in any of the other periods, missing six shots.

Dallas 115, New Jersey 113

In Dallas, Mark Aguirre's 20-foot jumpshot with 58 seconds remaining provided the winning points and the Dallas Mavericks overcame a series of controversial rulings in the final moments to beat the New Jersey Nets.

The victory kept Dallas unbeaten at home this season but the Mavericks had to survive a shot at the buzzer by Darryl Dawkins to nip the Nets.

Dallas trailed by 11 in the second quarter, fought back to within 2 points early early in the third period and fell behind by 5 late in the quarter. Dallas, despite being outmuscled much of the game, clawed back in the final quarter and tied it 112-112 on a jumpshot by Pat Cummings with 1:31 to go.

Moments later Aguirre hit his shot to put Dallas in front. Dawkins then hit 1-of-2 free throws to get New Jersey within a point. During the final 45 seconds the teams traded turnovers and Dallas' Elston Turner then missed two free throws with 10 seconds to go to give the Nets a chance.

After an argument over where the Nets should inbound the ball after a timeout, Kevin Ramsey missed a layup. Aguirre got the rebound and was fouled with a second left. Aguirre made one free throw but missed the second to leave Dallas in front by 2 points.

Despite the buzzer having sounded while the ball was loose on the rebound, New Jersey was allowed a timeout and that call brought more debate. Dawkins' final shot, however, bounded off the rim to leave Dallas with the victory.

Jay Vincent scored 33 to lead the Mavericks while Aguirre finished with 29. Albert King paced the Nets with 25 and Dawkins had 18.

Atlanta 99, Philadelphia 94

In Atlanta, Dominique Wilkins scored 30 points and pulled down 10 rebounds to pace the Atlanta Hawks to a victory over the Philadelphia 76ers.

Atlanta jumped to a 21-5 lead in the first quarter and never trailed. The Hawks led 50-37 at the half but Philadelphia cut it to 93-89 with 48 seconds left.

Free throw by Dan Roundfield and Billy Paulitz increased the Hawks' lead to 95-89 with 25 seconds remaining. After Philadelphia's Sam Williams hit a free throw with 17 seconds left, Paulitz connected on two

Williams then scored on a layup and teammate Maurice Cheeks scored with three seconds left, drawing the 76ers to a 97-94 deficit. But Wilkins added a dunk with a second left to secure the victory.

For Atlanta, 5-5 and 5-0 at home, Eddie Johnson finished with 18 points while Roundfield scored 17.

Philadelphia, 7-3, was led by Andrew Toney with 27 points and Cheeks finished with 13. Moses Malone scored 12 while grabbing 11 rebounds. Julius Erving fouled out with 5 points after going 1-for-9 from the field.

Washington 102, Indiana 94

In Landover, Md., rookie Jeff Malone scored 21 points, including 12 in the fourth quarter, to guide the Washington Bullets to a victory over the Indiana Pacers.

Indiana's Herb Williams' dunk with 3:20 left cut Washington's lead to 89-86. But the Bullets scored the next 5 points, with Malone's layup upping the lead to 94-86 with 2:20 remaining.

Indiana's Jerry Sichting responded with a 16-foot jumpshot but Washington's Jeff Ruland countered with a layup with 1:39 left to give Washington a 96-88 lead. Indiana never got closer than 5 points the rest of the way.

Clark Kellogg scored 32 points for the Pacers and Williams added 15. Ricky Sobers scored 19 for Washington and Ruland added 17.

Indiana, 3-7, has lost 18 straight games on the road dating to Feb. 15 of last season. Washington, 4-6, remains last in the Atlantic Division.

Kellogg scored 11 points in the third quarter as Indiana overcame a four-point halftime deficit to take a 71-69 lead into the final period. Washington hit only 6-of-17 shots in the third quarter.

Seattle 119, Chicago 110

In Chicago, Jon Sundvold scored 24 points to lead the Seattle SuperSonics to a victory over the Chicago Bulls.

The Bulls, 3-6, led 88-82 entering the fourth quarter but Seattle rallied down the stretch to outscore Chicago 37-22.

The Bulls led 30-23 after one quarter. Orlando Woolridge scored 8 of his 22 points in the first period to send Chicago to an early lead. Sidney Green added 6 points for the Bulls.

The Bulls maintained their lead at 64-58 at the half, aided by Quintin Dailey's 11 points. Sundvold and Fred Brown kept Seattle close by hitting for 12 and 9 points, respectively.

Tom Chambers added 16 of his 22 points in the second half for Seattle, 7-5. Dailey had 21 points for Chicago and Dave Corzine added 18.

Kansas City 129, San Antonio 128

In San Antonio, Texas, Eddie Johnson scored 25 points, including two free throws with six seconds left, to lift the Kansas City Kings to a decision over the San Antonio Spurs.

The Kings hit 20-of-22 shots from the floor in the third period as they outscored San Antonio 46-26 to take a 103-93 lead into the final period.

Larry Drew hit 11 of his 21 points in the third quarter and Steve Johnson pumped in 10 of his 20 points in the period. San Antonio hit 18-of-20 free throw but only 4-of-15 field goal attempts in the third quarter.

George Gervin hit 24 of his 35 points in the second half, including 13 in the final period. Mike Mitchell, who gave San Antonio its only lead of the final period at 123-127 with 16 seconds left, added 24 points for the Spurs.

Denver 131, Golden State 120

Forwards Alex English and Kiki Vandeweghe scored 30 points apiece and center Dan Issel added 26 to lead the Denver Nuggets to a victory over the Golden State Warriors.

Denver made 22 field goals in the opening quarter — just one short of the NBA record. The Nuggets led 48-32 after one quarter.

The Warriors took the lead 103-102 with 9:48 left in the game. However, Denver went on 23-11 run over the next six minutes and were not threatened thereafter.

Joe Barry Carroll led Golden State with 26 points and Mickey Johnson added 19.

In a late game, it was Milwaukee at San Diego.

Bruins perfect in Garden

By United Press International

Ray Bourque broke a 1-1 tie with a second-period goal Thursday night and goalie Doug Keane preserved the lead to give the Boston Bruins a 4-1 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Bourque, who left the game with a bruised hip after the period, helped Bourque-Keane, the reserve goalie, with his sixth victory in eight games. Boston, now 13-4, has won three in a row and is 6-0 at Boston Garden.

Bruce Crowder, Tom Fergus and Mike Krushelnyski scored the other Boston goals as the Bruins increased their Adams Division lead over the Buffalo Sabres to four points.

Dale McCourt opened the scoring with Toronto's only goal but Crowder tied the score in the first period. Bourque collected his 10th goal off a power play with a high drive from the blue line through a crowd in front of goalie Mike Palmateer at 3:46 of the second period.

The Bruins wound up with a 43-19 shots on goal edge.

Montreal 4, Detroit 2

Phil Houshagh, Bobby Smith and Marc Tremblay scored in the third period and Rick Wamsley turned back 18 shots, carrying the Montreal Canadiens to a victory over the stumbling Detroit Red Wings. The decision lifted the Canadiens out of last place in the Adams Division ahead of Hartford. The loss was Detroit's sixth in its last seven games.

Quebec 4, Hartford 2

In Hartford, Conn., Peter Stastny scored at 4:42 of the third period Thursday night to snap a 2-2 tie, lifting Quebec to a decision over the Hartford Whalers and halting the Nordiques' three-game losing streak. Hartford goalie Greg Millen broke his stick in a scramble in front of the net and managed to stop a shot by Anton Stastny. But the rebound went to his brother, Peter, who beat Millen with a 15-foot wrist shot from the left faceoff circle.

Minnesota 5, Philadelphia 5

In Philadelphia, Brian Bellows scored his second goal of the game with 20 seconds left and the Minnesota North Stars staged a three-goal comeback in the third period to tie the Philadelphia Flyers. With 20 seconds left in regulation, Bellows forced a scoreless five-minute overtime. Minnesota's comeback also was aided by goals by Al MacAdam at 4:14 and Brad Maxwell at 15:32. Dave Poulin scored short-handed to give the Flyers a 5-2 lead in the third period before Minnesota scored its three goals.

Calgary 5, New Jersey 4

In Calgary, Alberta, Jamie Hislop scored his first goal of the season at 11:59 of the second period night to clinch a victory for the Calgary Flames over New Jersey, the Devils' fifth straight loss. Hislop's goal, set up on a pass from Steve Konroyd, was Calgary's only goal in two periods. The goal was scored at 11:59 on a 10-foot wrist shot from the slot to give the Flames a 5-2 advantage at the end of the period.

Second thoughts on freshman eligibility

By WILLIAM D. MURRAY
United Press International

SAN FRANCISCO — John Martens came to the University of San Francisco two years ago full of dreams of becoming a standout college basketball player.

After all, the Dons were one of the country's most successful programs and the coaching staff told Martens he had a good chance of starting.

The 1981 season began on a high note. National television, a starting role and a victory over highly ranked Georgetown. From there, it went downhill for freshman forward John Martens and the Dons.

Long before the Quintin Dailey scandal and the death of USF's basketball program, Martens decided it was time to leave.

"I had a problem adapting to a different lifestyle," he said. "I had never been away from home and I had a hard time adjusting. I was also into a problem many freshmen encounter. The man who recruited him — assistant coach Vince Combs — was fired.

"I wasn't close to (then head coach Pete) Barry," Martens said. "Coach Combs had recruited me and I communicated through him. Once Coach Combs was fired I wasn't able to communicate with anyone on the coaching staff."

Martens transferred to San Diego State after the 1981 season and was able to play immediately for the Aztecs because USF dropped its basketball program in June 1981.

However, an injury sidelined him much of last season and now Martens is healthy again and looking forward to playing this year.

"I feel more comfortable here now," the 6-8 forward said. "Last season, I was new to the program and it took time for me to fit in. That's one of the problems when you transfer."

Martens' freshman agony and odyssey is not unique.

In fact, each year many freshmen pack up and head to another university after becoming disillusioned with the school that recruited them. Much of the blame may stem from the NCAA's freshman eligibility rule. Because of the rule — introduced in the early 1970s — freshmen usually get little time to adjust to college before being subjected to the pressures created by the big money environment of college sports.

The young players often are bombarded by the media and pressured by coaching staffs who expect them to instantly contribute while juggling emotions of homesickness and loneliness.

One player confronted with such a situation only to transfer to another school is Greg Dreiling, a 7-2 center at Kansas.

Dreiling was highly recruited out of high school and decided to stay in his hometown of Wichita, Kan., to attend Wichita State.

Before Dreiling ever suited up for the Shockers he grabbed national headlines with his excellent play in the National Sports Festival. In head-to-head competition against fellow freshman centers Stuart Gray of UCLA and Patrick Ewing of Georgetown he more than held his own and entered his freshman season with great expectations.

Those expectations quickly disappeared as the school was hit with NCAA probation.

"It was tough trying to keep the probation out of my mind," Dreiling said.

How good are Rams? Stay tuned

By DAVE RAFFO
United Press International

After Monday night's 30-13 whipping of Atlanta, the Los Angeles Rams are taking themselves seriously as playoff contenders and everyone is taking rookie sensation Eric Dickerson seriously as a running back.

Don't think the Rams' success has been lost on the Washington Redskins, however, who take the No. 1 rush defense in the league and their own title aspirations into Los Angeles to visit the Rams Sunday. The Redskins, 9-2, are tied with Dallas for first in the NFC East while Los Angeles, 4-4, and San Francisco share the NFC West lead.

"We have a championship team," veteran Rams defensive end Jack Youngblood said. "We're the darkhorses in the race, but we've got what it takes to win and we're going to win it."

The Rams are rejuvenated under rookie head coach John Robinson, and much of that has to do with Dickerson's performance. After gaining 148 yards and two touchdowns against Atlanta, Dickerson tops the league with 1,369 yards and 19 TDs. Both figures are team records, and he's closing in on the league rookie record of 22 TDs set by Gale Sayers in 1965 and the all-time mark of 23 by O. J. Simpson in 1973.

Dickerson also has an outside chance at Simpson's all-time record of 2,003 yards rushing in a season.

"I don't like to think about records, but they're made to be broken," said Dickerson. "I have a long, hard road to go to get better. Because of the sophisticated defenses in this league, you can't stay the same. I realize I'm a rookie and have a lot to learn."

The Redskins allow just 80.7 yards per game on the ground, and have set some records. Washington's league-leading 372 points is a team record and has the Redskins on target to snap the all-time mark of 513 by Houston in 1961.

The Redskins have their own record-setting back in John Riggins. His two TDs in last week's 33-17 victory over the Giants gives him 11 straight games with rushing TDs to tie the league record set by Lenzie Moore in 1964. Riggins also has a club-record 16 TDs and is fifth in the league with 872 yards.

Washington kicker Mark Moseley is tied with Dickerson for the league lead with 114 points (a club record) and Joe Theismann leads the league in passing. Theismann has passed for 2,630 yards and 19 TDs with just five interceptions.

Chorus performs Saturday

TWIN FALLS — A capacity crowd is expected for the Twin Falls Magichords' annual show at 8 p.m. today and Saturday in the College of Southern Idaho's Fine Arts Auditorium.

A few tickets may still be available at Say-Mor Drug in Buhl, Vaco in Jerome, or Lockhart Company and Burt Hulse State Farm Insurance in Twin Falls, says Mike Fisher, publicity chairman.

The theme for the show will be "I Have A Song to Sing."

Featured guests at the identical performances will be the Classic Collection of Denver, the 1982 international champions in competition sponsored by the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America.

In addition to the Magichords' 60-voice barbershop chorus, local quartets also will perform. Fisher says. These include All the Pres-

Harrison Ford to play Indiana Jones again

Indiana Jones adventure scene to be shot locally

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — With a lot of movie know-how, a bit of the Snake River Canyon will be transformed into India in the film that continues the adventures of Indiana Jones from "Raiders of the Lost Ark."

A small crew will film at an unidentified site near Twin Falls, but there will be no star Harrison Ford, no producer George Lucas — and as little fuss as possible.

Because in the finished product on screen, the site of the familiar canyon only will last a few seconds.

A location scouting party visited Twin Falls this week to find a portion of the spectacular canyon that would be used in a sequence in the film, "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom."

Executive Producer Frank Marshall, who owns a condo in Boise, was the one who thought the canyon would be just right for what is called a "pickup shot."

The bulk of the movie has been shot already mostly in London and on location in Sri Lanka. It now is in the "post production phase," Marshall says.

While editing a wild sequence in which Indy and two companions in a raft go from a snowy mountain to white water rapids, it was decided a transition shot to take the actors from the mountain to the water was needed, Marshall says. Such a transition shot was not part of the original shooting.

Marshall says he was familiar with the canyon and

Joining Marshall in the search was location manager Ian Bryce and a special effects man. After consulting a pictorial aerial map of the canyon provided by the Bureau of Land Management, the team set off in rented cars with Lee Wagner, a member of the Twin Falls Greater Chamber of Commerce' tourism committee. Carl Wolfe with the state film bureau has been working with the filmmakers and accompanied them to some possible locations.

On the way, Wolfe says that John Synder of the "Dukes of Hazzard" fame will be looking for snow when he films a Christmas special soon in Sun Valley. He jokes that Synder needed snow there, but they didn't want any for this crew.

Some sites and a lunch later, a spot was selected. Wolfe said he will help the crew gain any permission to use the land, be it private or public. The chamber also will lend a hand.

The filming may be done next week after more crew and equipment have arrived. Altogether less than 10 persons — none actors — will be involved, Marshall says. "It's as small of a unit as you can get."

It will take a few days to set up the ramp to launch the raft and one day to film, depending on the weather. It will be the job of the special effects to make sure the

Pistol-packing cowboy image mostly myth

"I'll tell you what a cowpuncher is. It ain't roping and it ain't riding bronc and it ain't being smart, neither. It's thinking enough about a dumb animal to go out in the rain or snow to try to save that cow."

NEW YORK — Since the 1880s, Americans have projected their own current values on the cowboy, and turned him successively into a performer and entertainer, a moralist, a salesman, a counterculture hero and a fashion plate.

The myth vs. the reality of this truly American creation is explored in a new book, "The American Cowboy" by Lonn Taylor and Ingrid Maar (Harper and Row, $50) just out this September.

This illustrated book catalogs one of the largest exhibitions of visual material on the cowboy and the pseudo-cowboy ever assembled. Prepared by the Library of Congress, the exhibit takes a look at cowboy painters, western writers, movie stars from Bronco Billy Anderson to John Wayne, singing cowboys, western recording stars, the Marlboro Man, and much, much more.

"The American Cowboy" contains 300 illustrations of them in diatone and half in full color. These include paintings, watercolors, sketches, prints and bronzes by artists such as Fredric Remington, Charles M. Russell and N.C. Wyeth. Also pictured are artifacts from 19th century cowboy life and an array of objects from the 20th century commercial exploitation of the cowboy myth.

"The American Cowboy" shows that the bronco-busting, pistol-packing cowboy hero who sets American hearts throbbing is something far removed from the migrant laborer of a century ago.

Here are some examples:

• The range cattle industry began, matured and collapsed in the space of a mere twenty years — between 1860 and 1886. When over-production caused the price of beef to fall, and bad weather and depleted range grass took their toll on the cattle, the industry was reorganized and there was less need for cowboys.

• Myth holds that the cowboy is a white Anglo-Saxon, while in reality many cowboys were black or brown. Texas, the source of so many cowboys, was a slave state, and the coastal counties where cattle were raised in Texas before the Civil War had large slave populations. The "Medican Vaquero" (herdsman) was the direct ancestor as well as the constant companion of the cowboy.

• There were probably not more than 50,000 cowboys in the U.S. during the years of the cattle boom.

• Cowboys were at the bottom of the beef industry structure.

• The romantic image of the cowboy first appeared in popular magazines in the early 1880s in "illustrations" drawn by two "Harper's" artists, W.A. Rogers and Rufus F. Zogbaum.

• Historians are still debating whether or not cowboys sang to their cows. In 1910, folklorist John Lomax published "Cowboy Songs," containing 112 texts and 14 tunes, which was uncritically accepted by the public as authentic cowboy music.

• Although there had been some earlier use of the cowboy in advertising, it was in the late 1930s that the commercial world forged a link between cowboys, children and commercial products. Ralston Purina's radio show featuring Tom Mix began in 1933 and was soon imitated by Quaker Oats with Roy Rogers, Langendorf Bread with Red Ryder, General Mills with Hopalong Cassidy and the Lone Ranger and Grape Nuts Flakes with Buck Jones.

• A study of contemporary ranching revealed that although there have been many technological advancements, the basic rhythm of the range cattle industry in the Great Basin is much the same as it was in the late 1830s. There are still roundups, brandings and short trail drives. Cattle are still worked on horseback — and the main object of the cowboy's attention is still the cow.

• In 1903, Edwin S. Porter made the first western film, "The Great Train Robbery." During the next 50 years, the movies contributed more than any other medium to the popularization of the cowboy as an American hero.

Weaver enjoys simplicity of art

Handwoven garments featured in show

By KAREN MAIN
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — Handwoven garments designed and made by Lynn Cothern will be part of a holiday fashion show Saturday in Buhl.

The display will include a plain-weave shirt and blouse with a patterned border, and a ruan, a pancho-like garment designed by the 29-year-old weaver.

In the spirit of the down-to-earth craft of weaving that dates back thousands of years, Cothern says she enjoys the simplicity of designing homespun clothing in a variety of textures and patterns.

For two years, she has been weaving cloth from cotton, cotton blends and wool. Cothern says she would like to try her hand at weaving "luxurious" silk.

Cothern works on a four-harness handloom nestled in the corner of her living room, while her 9-month-old son plays nearby. He sometimes crawls underneath the loom and tugs at the tempting yarn.

Near the maple loom sits a spinning wheel waiting for Cothern to practice. Cothern says that once she has perfected the use of a spinning wheel, she plans to turn the fleece of her angora goat into yarn she can weave.

sewing machine to complete her piece.

Upstairs is the drawing board, where Cothern first images her masterpieces in sketches.

Besides the practicality of weaving her own cloth, Cothern says the handwoven garments are "better constructed" and have more "aesthetic appeal" than manufactured clothes.

"There is a more tactile quality than things you buy in the store," she says. Lately some manufacturers have attempted to imitate the quality of handwoven clothes, she says.

Weavers have the ability to make each garment unique, Cothern says. Depending on how the harness of the loom is threaded and how the treadle is used, a weaver can create unusual textures and patterns, she says.

"You can do really simple, plain things, or very complicated things," she says.

Cothern learned her craft in a community college course when she lived in Eugene, Ore. She continues to study through practice and, sharing knowledge with the other members of the Snake River Handweavers Guild.

Cothern's artistic abilities are not limited to her cloth creations. She is also an artist, well known for her water colors and pencil drawings.

Opera house grandeur restored

By PENNY SPAR
United Press International

WOODLAND, Calif. — The faded handbill "pasted" on the basement dressing room door of the Woodland Opera House, touted "Billy Pearl singing the latest Boston and New York craze 'Tommy, Tell Me True.'"

In another of the eight dark cubicles beneath the stage, the handwritten, penciled scrawl "Anita Waldorf and Fiddle De De, Nov. 3, 1902" is a reminder of the minstrel acts that toured California's Central Valley.

Now the smell of the great past is gone as is most of the musty odor associated with long-boarded up buildings, for the Woodland Opera House was closed in the spring of 1913.

"This place never had an opera performed in it," said James Nolan. "They used to call theaters 'opera houses' to lend prestige to the buildings. That was the fashion of the day."

Nolan, a lawyer, is president of the 25-member Opera House board of trustees, which is intent on restoring the 53-seat building to its former rural grandeur.

Nolan said the Opera House is the only theater of its kind west of St. Louis never to be converted into a movie house, and to foresees a day sometime in late 1994 when it will once again open to great fanfare.

First built in 1885, the Opera House burned to the ground in 1892. It was reconstructed in 1896 by David Hershey and William Flournoy, who settled in the Yolo County seat after driving a herd of cattle over the Sierra Nevada from Missouri.

During its grand days between 1896 and 1912, the Opera House featured—minstrel, musical—and dramatic shows, boxing exhibitions and political oratory.

It drew patrons from throughout Northern California to the agriculturally rich valley, better known today for its tomato production than cultural activities.

The graffiti in the basement dressing rooms are all that remains

James Nolan sits in the nearly-restored opera house in Woodland, Calif.

"Jack Bergman, The Merchant of Venice, March 27, '09," is penciled on the door-to-dressing room 6. Across the way someone wrote "McCoy and Regan, musical comedians, Sept. 10, 1897."

Playbills posted in one dressing room proclaim the performances of "Frank Kirk, The Acrobatic Tramp, Inventor and Performer upon Instruments Grotesque. The Novelty of Novelties. You have never seen an act like this."

Then box office receipts fell.

Thick boards were nailed across the windows and the double-door entry way. Dust and debris settled in the dress circle and on the 6-foot-wide wooden staircase that led to the narrow semi-circular balcony.

For decades the interior was home only for whatever birds and animals that could get inside and hundreds of transients in search of a night's shelter.

A least one hobo set a fire to warm himself, leaving a back balcony bench a charred ruin.

But the red-brick building, located between Dead Cat Alley and Main Street in downtown Woodland, is almost restored.

Purchased by the Yolo Historical Society for $12,000 in 1971, the Opera House was deeded to the state in 1980 when the California Legislature named it a historic state park.

The Opera House board of trustees, backed by a nearly $2 million state grant, authorized work to modernize the building and make it fire and earthquake safe.

Steel beams now reinforce the once-crumbling brick exterior. A new wooden-slat orchestra floor has been laid.

A new roof high over the backstage replaced the one lost during a fire in 1937. A sprinkler system has been installed to prevent similar catastrophes.

Modern theater lighting and air conditioning also have gone into the building once lit by gas lamps and cooled by whatever breezes came into through open windows.

The restoration came to a halt in early 1982 when the money ran out. Another $750,000 worth of renovations must still be completed.

Replicas of the chairs that once filled the dress circle must be built and the benches in the balcony need major refinishing. Flocked wallpaper, reminiscent of the period, has to be found and hung.

The William Penn Mott State Parks Foundation promised to provide $500,000 once the community fund-raising efforts accumulate $250,000, Nolan said.

He said the Opera House trustees nearly have reached that goal with $100,000 in the bank and another $100,000 in pledges.

The schedule calls for the repair work to resume in the spring and the grand reopening in the fall of 1984.

"The first performance should be in three parts," Nolan said. "There should be a musical, a dance, and a dramatic portion — just to show the variety of the place."

After that, Nolan said the trustees anticipate the Opera House will be a self-supporting center for the performing arts.

raft does what it's supposed to, Marshall says.

The shot of the canyon in the film will last under five seconds, he adds. The cost of the shooting may hit $15,000. That may seem like a drop in the bucket in a production budgeted at $27 million, but Marshall says its cost effective, because the shot will be used. Often, a scene is filmed at much higher costs and may not even be used in the final version.

Then, why come all the way to

Herman Melville manuscript found in barn

By THOMAS CONROY
United Press International

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. — The value of 30 manuscript pages of Herman Melville's "Typee" found this year in a dusty barn can be appreciated only when it is realized there was only a single page in his handwriting known previously.

The New York Public Library, which called the find a miracle, announced this summer that it had paid about $50,000 for the 160-year-old portion of the first draft of Melville's first novel, plus a collection of hundreds of letters to, from and about the author.

The six-figure price was far beyond what Melville ever pocketed for his works. He died in obscurity in New York City in 1891 and it was not until decades later that his novels attained critical esteem.

It seems the troubled author of "Moby Dick" had a penchant for burning what he wrote. Of all the works published in his lifetime, only a single page of "Typee" and a few scraps of "Confidence Man" had survived till now.

The find was perfectly timed, says Melville scholar Thomas Tanselle.

Regard for Melville among critics and general readers has never been higher, he says, and a 15-volume, definitive edition of his works by Northwestern University and Chicago's Newberry Library is half-completed.

Tanselle notes the discovered material is a bonanza for scholars who can study Melville's compositional method by comparing the draft with published versions.

The precious pages were also a financial treasure for their finders: an anonymous woman in her 90s, a man rummaging for antiques, and a quick-thinking book dealer.

The story opens with Jack Guerrero, an antique "picker" who occasionally bought bric-a-brac from an elderly woman in Gansvoort, N.Y. Last February, he entered her barn in search of modest treasures and came across two boxes of papers all about a family named Melville.

The name rang a bell, and Guerrero began asking for someone who could tell him what the stuff was worth. He was referred to John DeMarco, a Melville student of nearby Saratoga Springs, who runs an antiquarian book business with his wife, Carolyn.

Guerrero called the DeMarcos and said he had 20 manuscript pages of "Typee."

An excited but skeptical DeMarco arranged to view the papers the next day and spent a sleepless night poring over them.

"As soon as I saw the manuscript I knew it was right," he says.

He purchased all the Melville material from the publicity-shy woman for a small price, and agreed to sell them, with the eventual purchase price to be split evenly among the woman, Guerrero and the DeMarcos.

"His eyes were like saucers" when he returned home with the manuscript, Mrs. DeMarco said. "I didn't even have to ask him."

DeMarco later went back to Gansvoort and grabbed the remaining papers and two trunks of Melville family mementos from the barn.

Ten other pages of "Typee" were found, the manuscript was transcribed and photocopied and transferred to a bank vault.

The DeMarcos then spent more than a month painstakingly poring over the 19th century script of Melville and more than 400 letters.

Among the letters were three written by Melville and four to him, including the only surviving letter Melville ever received from Nathaniel Hawthorne, author of "The Scarlet Letter." Another 141 letters referred to him.

The corners of many of the envelopes had been cut off. Someone apparently — stumbled onto — the treasured material earlier — and decided its value lay in the stamps the letters bore.

The DeMarcos approached the New York Public Library first because Melville was a New Yorker, the library has an extensive Melville collection, and the DeMarcos did not want to see the material scattered at auction.

"They were shocked at the price," DeMarco said of library officials, but they paid it. Don Andriele, the library's associate director for special collections, and DeMarco believe an auction of the papers could have brought considerably more, perhaps $1 million.

'Annie' audition dates announced

TWIN FALLS — The audition schedule for the Magic Valley Dilettante's spring production of "Annie" is as follows:

Girls, 5 to 14 years old, will tryout Jan. 3 from 4 to 10 p.m. in the Morningside School cafeteria. They are to sing two songs from the show.

"It's a Hard Knock Life" and "Tomorrow."

On Jan. 4, tryouts will be held for adult character roles, chorus and dancers from 6 to 10 p.m., also at Morningside.

Persons auditioning for character roles are to sing a song from the show that the character sings. Chorus and dancers may sing any song from the show, and chorus boys are to sing "Hooverville."

For more information contact Cindy Houser, 733-8384 or 733-0671.

The musical will be presented in March in the College of Southern Idaho's Fine Arts Auditorium.

$500 donated to CSI music department

Patty Hadley, president of the music club, to Thomas Breske, music professor at the school's annual fall band concert. Recipients of music club scholarships this past year were Tyla Weeks and Christine Braun, both of Jerome; George Isenhardt of Glenns Ferry; Shelli Packham of Kimberly; and Pam Taylor of American Falls.

'One Day at a Time' 200th episode taped

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "One Day at a Time," the Bonnie Franklin television series about a divorced mother rearing her offspring, will celebrate taping of its 200th episode this month.

To commemorate the occasion, Embassy Television is throwing a party for the show's cast and crew and 200 divorced mothers who, like Ann Romano (played by Franklin), faced the challenge of rearing kids on their own.

Norman Lear, originator and producer of the show, will "warm up" the audience as he did 200 shows ago when "One Day at a Time" made its debut. On hand will be Miss Franklin, Pat Harrington, Boyd Gaines, Michael Lemmon, Nanette Fabray and Valerie Bertinelli.

The 200th show, which has a Christmas theme, will be telecast Dec. 18 on CBS-TV. In other television news, Frank Sinatra will be the centerpiece of "All Star Party for Sinatra," a TV special celebrity tribute honoring the singer for his contributions to the music world and his humanitarian works.

What's what

The soft felt hat with the low crown creased lengthwise is called a fedora. But why? Inquires a client. "Fedora" was the name of a play written by Victorien Sardou. It opened in Paris in 1882. French actress Sarah Bernhardt starred. Throughout that play she wore such a hat, then and evermore thereafter. And the hat wound up with the name of the play.

Did I tell you women buy nine out of 10 men's handkerchiefs?

POGONOMOTOMY

The way a man handles his pogonomotomies has much to do with how he looks, too, of course. Of course? Pogonomotomies is another word for shaving.

Experts in the game of poker say your opponents can't judge whether it's your policy to bluff or not if you don't bluff more than 6 percent of the time.

This observation turned up in a Weight Watcher's publication: "In golf, it's distance. In cigars, it's taste. In a Volkswagen, it's impossible."

COST OF LAND

Q. Which cost the United States the least money per acre — the Louisiana Purchase or Alaska?

A. Alaska at about two cents an acre paid to Russia. The Louisiana Purchase cost about three cents an acre paid to France.

Q. What's a "Road Roller"?

A. A new sort of vehicle with steel wheels to run on tracks and rubber tires to run on highways. It gets to the railroad station on its own power, hooks up to the train, then drives away at the other end.

Twenty-three percent of the grownup Americans don't drink any sort of liquor at all.

No bird the size of a bat can carry as much weight in flight as said bat.

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Avoid getting involved in wishful thinking. Fast-talkers are trying to persuade you. You need to carefully guard your funds and property against any sort of poor judgment.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Be sure to handle personal matters sensibly and later do the same with your business affairs. Seek needed advice.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Steer clear of one who listens carefully to your troubles and appears to be sympathetic, only to profit from them later.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Your judgment may not be good when personal matters are concerned, so think them out carefully before acting.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Not a good morning to be out in public. Don't visit friends later since they are too preoccupied.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): It's all right to think about expanding and making changes, but don't take any action today. New contacts could be dangerous.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Don't be forceful in gaining the favor of one in business and be sure you know just where you stand.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Don't permit a grumpy partner to upset you in the morning, since later practical matters are difficult to handle.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Get your work completed so that you can be free for the weekend. Be sure not to upset a partner today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21):

Forget pleasure and go after the important business aims that motivate you and become more successful.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Be sure you think before you speak at home and thereby save a possible confrontation with kin.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Don't be impulsive with your comments, otherwise you can get into trouble easily. Decide how to improve routines.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): You are apt not to think straight about money matters, so go over your figures well. Use caution driving today.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY, he or she will be one of those young persons who can make many errors during childhood if not taught early in life to think and analyze before taking any action. Once this is learned, your progeny would do very well in any vocation.

Pennsylvania friend searching for a bride

DEAR ABBY: I have been reading your column for years in the Scranton Tribune but never needed to write before this. I am 62 and have been taught from childhood to help my fellowman.

I know a wonderful 27-year-old man who is as nice as they come. He's served four years in the U.S. Army, believes in God, and has no prejudices whatsoever.

Can you rush me a list of missionaries, institutions, religious orders and lonely hearts magazines where he could find a nice girl who maybe has had a hard life and would appreciate a tall, handsome, slim, young white man?

Religion doesn't matter. He could give her a nice home, children, marriage and a happy future. He doesn't care if she's divorced, widowed or has had child out of wedlock. And it's even OK if she's Oriental or American Indian. Thank you.

FRIEND IN PENNSYLVANIA
DEAR FRIEND: Your friend sounds like a fine young man, but if you want to help him, please encourage him to find his own wife. He can begin by socializing where decent, worthwhile people spend their time.

He could volunteer his services to the elderly, disabled, disadvantaged children and veterans. All these people have friends and relatives. All he has to do is let them know he is interested in meeting a nice woman. Nice young women are standing in line to meet a decent young man.

DEAR ABBY: It is right for my family (brothers and sisters) to invite my ex-husband and his new wife to family parties where I am invited even after I have specifically requested them not to?

And to add insult to injury, his new wife was the woman who broke up our marriage. They are all aware of how he mistreated me during our marriage, but they continue to include him in family gatherings.

I want to be with my family — particularly for the holidays — but not if he is going to be there.

HURT IN BIRMINGHAM
DEAR HURT: Since your family is aware that your "ex" has mistreated you and you are uncomfortable in his presence, but they invite him anyway, then they have made a choice. And it's not you.

DEAR ABBY: I wish kids would stop calling it "making love" when it's simply having sex. Sex in the living room on the cake. To make a cake, you assemble the right ingredients, combine them properly, bake and cool. Then apply the icing!

Thanks for listening.
DEAR DISGUSTED IN SAPULPA
DEAR DISGUSTED: Right! The most important part is letting the cake cool.

DEAR ABBY: A few months ago you ran a letter that still bothers me. It was signed "Can't Decide." She couldn't decide if she should marry the "wonderful, considerate, generous" man she had been dating for two years because he was "short, stocky and bald." She said she was afraid that any children they might have would look like him.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

Abby, I'm so glad you advised her to not marry him because she was unsure. I have an even greater concern for any children they might have: They might grow up to think like HER.

—AN INNER-BEAUTY FAN

DEAR ABBY: I worked for a married man for 25 years. For 18 of those years I was his mistress. I finally broke it off after trying to end it for three years.

He got mad and fired me. Then he hired a young divorcee to take my place. I needed that job, Abby. I told him if he didn't give me my job back I would tell his wife.

Should I keep my word?

UNDECIDED
DEAR UNDECIDED: No. If your boss fired you because you refused to sleep with him you can sue him for sexual harassment. You can also appeal to the Labor Relations Board and/or one of the many support groups for women's rights. WEAL (Women's Equity Action League, 805 15th St. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20005) and your local chapter of NOW (National Organization for Women) are particularly effective. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: In reply to "Bible Student": Adam was not BORN, he was CREATED. Also, the Bible states that "Mary was WITH CHILD — not WITH FEETUS."

I really think "Bible Student" should go back to school.

—RAY IN CHULA VISTA, CALIF.
(Problems? What's bugging you? Unload on Abby, P.O. Box 38223, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

HOLLYWOOD — Americans, more than any people on earth, are entertained to death.

Television and cable run 24 hours a day. Many theaters are open around the clock. Restaurants, elevators and automobile radios blare canned music ceaselessly. Factories and business offices pipe in music.

Walkman and other tape recorders, not to mention portable radios, are part of the American street scene. It's as if the populace had grown earphones and antennas. Even joggers wear them.

Airports have small, quarter-operated TV sets for travelers who cannot sit still for half an hour awaiting their flights. In flight there are, of course, earphones and movies.

Silence has become a sin in the United States. Diversion is all. The torrent of entertainment, or what passes for entertainment, is such that producers of special programs designed to delight the ear and eye are hard-pressed to come up with original material.

One such is Robert F. Jani, producer-director of the Radio City Music Hall Entertainment Center, creative consultant for Walt Disney Productions, president of his own production company and until recently director of ceremonies for the

Jani is responsible for the astonishing, half-thrilling participation of 100,000 fans in the Kaleidoscope card stunts at the last Super Bowl.

Often billed as the P.T. Barnum of modern show business, Jani is a self-spoken, unimpressive, man who lives and works quietly near the Pacific Ocean in Southern California.

Like many other impresarios, Jani finds himself in the position of trying to top himself with entertainment specials, most recent of which is the second annual "Magnificent Christmas Spectacular" at Los Angeles Shrine Auditorium — a West Coast edition of the Radio City Music Hall supercolossal starring the Rockettes.

"The essential element of a spectacular is surprise," he said. "The audience must see and hear more than it anticipated. There must be enough magic to exceed expectations."

"We live in a transitional time, an age of electronic communication, and none of us is futuristic enough to grasp how it will all end."

"Because so much entertainment is available, Americans are getting more selective and sophisticated about quality and constancy in everything."

THE ACES®

BOBBY WOLFF

Dear Mr. Wolff:

RHO opened one heart and I bid two hearts to show a huge hand. I had about 22 HCP and held three four-card suits and a singleton heart. We reached game and made it. But partner carpiped about the hand. I had had the ace or a void. Want my bid the most descriptive bid available?

Malplaced Priorities, New Orleans

ANSWER: I agree completely with your bid. The primary objective of the immediate cue-bid is to commit your side to game. Specific contract-showing cue-bids are used after a suit fit is established and if becoming apparent that a slam may be possible.

Dear Mr. Wolff:

Is a jump raise of partner's vulnerable one-level overcall an invitational bid or forcing? Partner passed my jump and we made game.

One Stop, Detroit

ANSWER: The jump raise of an overcall is an invitational bid. The overcaller is invited to bid game with a good overcall and may pass if he has already stretched his values. To assure reaching a game, overcaller's partner should cue-bid to show opponent's suit to create a force or should jump directly to game himself.

Dear Mr. Wolff:

I have read that it's advisable to open one no-trump even though one might hold a worthless doubton. How about the right count and two worthless doubtons?

Double Ace, Little Rock, Ark.

ANSWER: One per centum is all I suggest. With two worthless doubtons, the high-card strength of the hand is concentrated in two suits. This suggests that play in a suit is more promising than play at no-trump.

Dear Mr. Wolff:

One of our friends insists that, after three passes, it is a good gamble to bid three no-trump with the strength of a normal one-no-trump opening. His reasoning is that his partner rates to have as much strength as either of the two opponents and that the "shutout" makes it more difficult for the opponents to defend. Any comment?

Vegas Beach, Lincoln, Neb.

ANSWER: Nice theory if one likes to roll the dice instead of playing bridge. The odds are all wrong using such tactics. With an opening no-trump bid in fourth hand, the opponents are unlikely to compete and the normal opening should get you a higher level contract. In this instance, four no-trump is used as a three-suit takeout request.

Dear Mr. Wolff:

Opponent opens four overcall and may pass if he has already stretched his values. To assure reaching a game, overcaller's partner should cue-bid to show opponent's suit to create a force or should jump directly to game himself.

High Levels, Newark, N.J.

ANSWER: The double of a four-spade pre-empt is primarily for penalties; however, partner may bid if he thinks he can get a higher level contract. In this instance, four no-trump is used as a three-suit takeout request.

Send bridge questions to The Aces, P.O. Box 1383, Dallas, Texas 75203, with self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

BOBBY WOLFF

Dear Mr. Wolff,
RHO opened one heart and I bid two hearts to show a huge hand. I had about ### 1/3 OFF

THANKSGIVING SPECIAL

"I lost 37 pounds and wasn't even hungry."

Darlene McKim
Twin Falls

I am thrilled. I lost 37 pounds and was never hungry. The Nutri/System program is a lifetime weight-loss program, not a gimmick. It really works and I am a living example. The program includes diet, exercise and behavior education.
